Computer Technology Sees What The Judge Can't At KILE

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — In the past, looking at a prize heifer and thinking she'd have no trouble with calving was all you'd have to go on.

But often, at birth, the cow needed assistance. Pelvic area might have been too small, or other characteristics may have affected it at birth.

Often times, what the judge appears to see in the show ring is not what is. But new techniques that marry human medical computer technology to progeny analysis in cattle help determine a true winner.

Enter the Polled Hereford Association's Genetic Focus Show, held last week at the Keystone International Livestock Expo (KILE). There, two days before the show began, approximately 145 cattle, from calves to cows, were brought under scrutiny by the association.

First, the cattle's height was measured. Second, using ultrasound techniques, backfat and ribeye areas were measured. Third, pelvic measurements were taken, and cattle were weighed.

Scores from the data compiled from the measurements were combined with the judges' visual scores to determine final placings in the show on Sunday.

"We take an image of the cross section of ribeye, as well as the loin eye area," said Dr. Jim Stouffer, president of Animal Ultrasound Service, Inc., which conducted the tests.

Using "the same technology used in hospitals," said Dale Miller, technical representative for the Thornburgh was on hand Thursday afternoon at Funk's Farm in Millersville. There, he addressed more than 100 farmers and agribusiness leaders in the area as part of a three-location campaign tour before the senate election on November 5.

Thornburgh, governor from 1979-1987, told supporters that if elected to the seat, now held by incumbent Harris Wafford (D-Bryn Mawr) since the accidental death of former U.S. senator John Heinz (R-Pittsburgh), he will run the office in way "characteristic of our farm families in your community," he said.

"We were tight wads," he said. "We cut taxes, we cut expenses, we left (the state) with a $400 million surplus and I was proud of the fact that we could keep our books in balance."

Thornburgh said the statements he made "are clues to how I will conduct myself as a United States senator in working for the agricul-

2 NO CHARGE FORAGE & NITRATE TESTING

Because of drought conditions in many local areas, it may be necessary to check forages more closely for high levels of nitrates. To help ease the financial burden of this added testing, Pennfield will not charge their customers or prospects for nitrate tests run between now and December 31, 1991.

As usual — there is no charge for normal forage tests and the turnaround time at the Pennfield Lab in Lancaster, PA is 48 HOURS.

Forage mailer kits are available at no charge, postage is paid by Pennfield, and results can be mailed direct to your farm.

BARN PAINTING
Aim For The Best - In Coating Film Thickness

To do it right use the finest kind of bristle brush evening out the coating into a film thickness that does not peel in normal moisture stress (found on most barn siding from outside and inside by livestock or stored animal feed)

1. PREPARATION. Peeling old coatings (improperly brushed) needs to be removed. The best method is simply water blasting or power washing! High volume of water - medium pressure is best! Done professionally or do it yourself, especially on the easy to reach areas. This is resurfacing!!!
2. BEST NEW START ON RESURFACED WOOD SIDING After spraying on this kind of barn paint or stain, take time to pay attention to brush out in all directions to create a film thickness that will prevent future peeling & resurfacing costs & effort This film will let excess moisture breathe through it Depending on the amount of weather wear it can be recoated lightly in 10-15 years. Southern exposures usually wear faster.

OPINION

A Job Well Done

With all the activities packed into the five-day KILE in Harrisburg over last weekend at the Farm Show complex, we need to say things ran smoothly. In the largest show ever, animals were housed everywhere. Almost every species and breed had additional entries over last year.

Fourteen hundred sheep, 12 six-horse hitches and food stands that were constantly restocking because of record crowds are just a few of the statistics that say this was the largest and best show ever.

Saturday night at the challenge of the breeds horse show, the large arena was well-filled. And the small arena was well-filled Sunday for the final judging of the Polled Herefords that included genetic data gathered before the show.

When you consider the small number of people who made this large show function, we say it was a job well done.

To Submit Century Farm Applications

Has your farm been in your family for 100 years or more? If so, then you are eligible to receive the Century Farm Award.

This program is administrated by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. To qualify as a Century Farm, the farm must have been owned by the same family for 100 consecutive years.

A family member must currently live on the farm and the farm must consist of at least 10 acres of the original holding or gross more than $1,000 annually from the sale of farm products.

A lot of counties recognize their Century Farms at Farm-City banquets. Lancaster County currently has 115 registered Century Farms.

If you are interested in becoming a Century Farm, applications are available at our office, 1383 Arcadia Road, Room 1, Lancaster, PA 17601 or by calling (717) 394-6851.

To Be Careful With Ladders

Ladders are very useful around the farm to reach high places. At the same time, many serious accidents may occur through improper use.

When using your ladder this fall, keep the following safety tips in mind:

- Read ladder weight capacity and use labels very carefully.
- Do not use a ladder which is too short or too tall for the job.
- Inspect ladders every month and discard unsafe ladders.
- Get help when raising and lowering extension ladders.
- Always check the area above ladders for obstructions and electric wires.
- Do not expose ladders to the elements and heat sources.
- Do not store wooden ladders where moisture may weaken their structure.

To Make Sure Children's Toys Are Safe

Children are very special people. They provide us with a lot of happy moments.

However, there are very few things worse than accidents involving children. Unsafe toys pose many serious hazards. Toys with parts that may come loose and lodge in children's throats are one of the leading causes of choking in children.

The holiday season is particularly critical, since so many toys are sold. Parents and relatives play an important role in protecting children from unsafe toys.

Never give a child toys that are meant for display purposes only. Examples would include the 1/16th scale farm toy tractors. The muffler, air cleaner, and wheels of these replicas can separate from the tractor's main body and cause a choking hazard.

Examine all toys your children play with to make sure buttons, wheels, and other parts will not come off. Taking a few minutes to examine toys could prevent a serious and sometimes fatal accident.

Farm Forum

Editor:

Fellow dairymen, which brand of supply management do you prefer? An extension of what we already have, with a graduated milk tax according to some reports could go as high as 75¢ for each hundredweight of milk entering regular market channels.

The time for decision is NOW with supplies down partly due to drought in many areas. Fellow dairymen, we deserve better than what the government is currently proposing which down the road a ways promises not only economic disaster for many dairymen but serious shortages for consumers.

Get real! Not many dairymen can continue to produce milk indefinitely given the current risks and uncertainties including the current drought situation. Without a sizable price increase to $14 or $15 per hundredweight, $11 or even $13 milk just won't cut it.

There are those who are saying consumers will not pay the increased price, but really a $3 per hundred increase to producers figures out to just a little over 6¢ per quart increase to consumers, not an excessive price to pay to insure a dependable supply for consumers. And I might add, give dairymen those badly needed dollars to replace old and worn out equipment providing more jobs for those engaged in the manufacturing of some.

For too many years dairymen have been led down the primrose path of more, more, more. It's time to organize and adopt a pricing plan divorced as far as possible from government domination and control. We already have our deductions for milk promotions. Let's review them and make them more effective. We don't need the added financial drain of a government imposed milk tax.

Which form of production controls will you as a dairyman apt to follow? More of the same, or will you join in a system of producer dominated production controls? A pricing system reflecting costs of production plus a reasonable profit for market clearing supplies. In short a base excess plan tailored to market needs with a minimum price for any excess production.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

REGARDING JESUS

October 13, 1991

Background Scripture: Acts 16:16-40.

Devotional Reading: Philippians 1:1-11.

Last week I saw a movie entitled Regarding Henry. This is the story of a very hard-driving and successful lawyer who is shot in the head during a robbery. The bullet takes away much of his memory and, during rehabilitation, while he is discovering who he was, he comes to realize that he doesn't much like the man he used to be.

People want him to hurry up and get back to being the old Henry, but instead he decides to be the new person that feels so "right" inside him — a man not driven by compulsions to "succeed at all costs," a man who appreciates the values of home, family, friends, justice and compassion over the values of the marketplace and his fast-paced society.

Reactions are very mixed. Most of his old associates in the lawn firm assume that the shooting has left him a bit brain-damaged. Others, including his wife, daughter and secretary, find the new Henry a much kinder and admirable man. When he decides his law career, they do not feel that he has thus become a failure. The new Henry is a success of another kind all too rare today: successfully human.

PAUL: "OLD" AND "NEW"

So it was with Paul. The old Paul had a reputation for his zealous and relentless persecution of Christians. He was a go-getter. The new Paul, however, they could not understand. And it was this new Paul that caused some people to think about the Christ whom he served. So when Paul and Silas are thrown into jail, it is the new Paul who at midnight is found with Silas, praying and singing hymns to God. The old Paul would have been breathing threats and ultimatums, but the new Paul was a very different man who seemed quite unshaken by his terrible ordeal.

Even more, when a great earthquake damages the prison so that Paul and Silas could have easily escaped, the terrified jailer — knowing he would be held responsible — finds his prisoners sitting peacefully in their cell. The jailer is dumbfounded: any other captive would have fled, but Paul and Silas remained behind out of consideration for him and his plight. They don't seem to understand: he is their jailer, but they are obviously not his captives.

WHAT MUST I DO?

These men have something that sets them apart from other human beings. He doesn't know what it is, but he wants it for himself: "Men, what must I do to be saved?" What must he do so that he, too, can have this peace and serenity that has nothing to do with their troubled circumstances. The answer: "Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ and you will be saved, you and your household." From that day forward, he was a marked man. He would forever afterward stick out like a sore thumb in Philippi, because his life would reflect the life of Jesus, not the life of his society.

Introducing Synchro-Max 2000™.

Recently there has been a lot written about the advantages of ration balancing based on Rumen Available Protein and Rumen Available Carbohydrate (RAP/RAC).

Now Agway has taken the RAP/RAC concept a giant step further with the development of the Synchro-Max 2000 line of dairy feeds, a unique and comprehensive feed and ration balancing program, proven to increase milk production at minimal increased cost.

Field demonstrations at 13 Agway-member farms with RHA's of 20,000 lbs. and more showed an average production increase of more than 3 lbs. per cow, per day. At an increased feed cost* of just one cent per cow, per day!

The critical ingredient? Synchronization. For maximum efficiency and nutrient utilization, it's critically important that the right amounts of protein and carbohydrate energy be available in the rumen at the right time. Using a proprietary database of innovative feed technology, your Agway Farm Enterprise Salesperson will first determine the RAP/RAC values of your forages. Then he will design the correct Synchro-Max 2000 feed program for your farm. For maximum production and profitability.

Ask your Agway Farm Enterprise Salesperson about Synchro-Max 2000, available exclusively from Agway. Whatever your herd's RHA, he has the feeds, technology and input to improve your output.

* Compared to feed fed prior to RAP/RAC

You'll Get Consistent, Risk-Free Performance From New Funk's G® Brand Hybrids

4393 105 Days
4472 110 Days
4530 113 Days
4624 118 Days

New Funk's G brand hybrids deliver consistent performance even under the stress of heat, drought, marginal soils or disease pressures. So you'll get virtually risk-free performance in good years — and in bad years.

Backed by CIBA-GEIGY research

You see, these hybrids are backed by nine years of CIBA-GEIGY Seed Division research. With local testing in growing conditions just like yours. That kind of research produces hybrids capable of standing up to anything mother nature has to offer. Hybrids that maximize your profit potential, while minimizing your risks.

Get complete performance

Plus, you get performance across the board. With big yields. But with 95% or better standability... 25% or less moisture... and intactness ratings under four. And you get all that in the maturity groups you need to spread your risks even more.

Limit your risks

Get risk-free performance on your farm today by calling Hoffman Seeds, Inc. You'll enjoy the peace of mind that comes from planting these new Funk's G brand hybrids.

Editor:

I have never felt that premiums paid to dairy farmers, could or should replace a stable milk pricing system. However, the last two administrations that have been elected in Washington D.C. have failed to listen to the needs of dairy farmers, as they have tried to obtain a realistic milk pricing system.

As a result of Washington's ineptness, dairy farmers have found it necessary to pursue alternative avenues in an attempt to improve milk prices.

Dairy farmers have grouped together in over-order pricing agencies, such as R.C.M.A. In addition, dairy farmers have successfully negotiated voluntary premiums from milk handlers.

As Washington continued to exhibit a deaf ear towards the plight of dairy farmers; several states in the northeast took various steps in an attempt to rectify the inadequate prices paid to dairy farmers.

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania took the lead as the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board granted a $1.05 per cwt. Premium on Class I (fluid) milk used in Pennsylvania. This $1.05 premium gave several other states the courage to implement some price relief to their dairy farmers.

However, the $1.05 premium in Pennsylvania had some shortcomings. Many dairy farmers in Pennsylvania did not receive any direct benefits from the premium.

New York State

During the late 1930's as turmoil developed in Central New York State as a result of low milk prices being paid to dairy farmers; (sound familiar) the legislators in the Empire State passed legislation which allows dairy farmers to petition the state for a milk hearing in an attempt to secure a statewide milk order.

Independent and small milk cooperative directors of R.C.M.A. pursued the idea of a New York State milk hearing under the guidelines of the Roger Allen Law. Finally, obstacles were overcome and R.C.M.A. moved aggressively and successfully in obtaining a hearing in New York State, which resulted in a favorable decision for dairy farmers.

However, dairy farmers all across the Northeast have just had the rug pulled out from under them, as an attempt to amend the New York State order, to allow for compensatory payments, has been turned down, as the amendment failed to obtain a 66⅔ percent favorable vote.

The sad part of the defeat is the fact, that at least two dairy cooperatives voted against the amendment. It has been reported that up-state milk coop from the western part of New York and Dairylea Cooperative of Syracuse, New York voted NO in a bloc vote for all of their members.

In a letter to their members, Dairylea tried to defend their vote; saying, "because too many serious economic issues resulting from the order remain unresolved." To their argument, I say "hogwash". Of course, premiums that are not reasonably unified in a given area will cause problems. But, aren't these nice problems to address as opposed to having no price increase to dairy farmers.

Actually the people that should have been upset were the majority of dairy farmers across the northern and central part of Pennsylvania that did not benefit from either The New York State order or the Pennsylvania $1.05 Premium.

Within Pennsylvania Pro-Ag and with coops like North Penn, Northern Tier and Scenic Mountain have been actively pursuing legislation that would allow the $1.05 in Pennsylvania, to be paid to all Pennsylvania dairy farmers.

And you know, we thought we could use the New York State order as an example.

Is it any wonder that dairy farmers feel they are knocking their heads against a stonewall. At a milk hearing in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania last spring we listened to an economist testify for several dairy cooperatives and he urged the P.M.M.B. to lower the Class I Premium from $1.35 down to $1.05.

Now along comes two dairy cooperatives and knock out a pricing order that could have started the ball rolling to provide some stability to our northeast dairy farmer.

During the milk hearing held in Washington D.C. this past summer the national milk producers federation testified for the support price on manufactured milk to be set at $11.60 per cwt., the House Sub-committee raised the level to $12.60 per cwt.

Maybe some of the reasons why dairy farmers have not been successful in Washington D.C. are starting to surface.

As the old-time minister said, "Father, don't help me from my enemies, save me from my friends."

Arden Tewksbury
Pro Ag Organization

October 1 is past. The Rogers-Allen petition failed to attract enough "yes" votes and 18 cents just went down the drain.

Why did the vote fail? It failed because it was not a vote of the farmers.

Thirteen hundred eligible famers did not even return their ballots, resulting in 1,300 "no" votes.

Whatever happened to "one man, one vote, and a simple majority of those voting?"

What has happened to the government of the people, by the people, for the people? Has it been replaced by a government of the politicians, by the bureaucratic corps for the corporate bottom line?

Where do we go from here? We refile the petition possibly with a new set of numbers that really would put a floor under the milk price in New York. We have a moral responsibility to do this in the interest of our neighbors in New England.

Beyond this action, the farm community must get behind RCMA and strongly consider pricing of our product on Nov. 1, 1991.

RCMA is the vehicle through which we can have a price for our product that approaches cost of production. We need solidarity. We don't need a lot of independent producers out there doing their own things, making their own deals, and believing what their handler tells them.

It is time, my friends, to get yourself an application for membership (1-800-634-3723), fill it out, send it in, and stand up and be counted.

The farm sector is the only one that lets someone else set the price for their product and it is time for a change.

We also do not need farmer cooperatives believing more in

Talk to a seed corn salesman, and he'll sell you more seed corn. Talk to Agway and we'll show you how to make more milk, more profitably, more often.

Like you, we know there's more to making milk than just growing corn. Your Agway Farm Enterprise salesperson has everything a dairy farmer needs to succeed.

Of course, it includes seed corn. But not just one. We offer over 20 hybrids specifically bred for high yields in your local growing conditions. And we offer more than just one brand seed corn, too. Only Agway lets you choose from an outstanding selection of Agway varieties as well as DeKalb, the country's other leading name. Your Agway representative can help you develop the most cost-effective ration balancing program for your herd size, forage quality and milking goals. And he can help you get more milk per acre out of every ton of corn you ensile with products like Silage Fresh Plus. So cows will get more of the dry matter and protein energy they need to produce.

If you want to know about corn, talk to a seed corn salesman. But if you want to know about making more corn, milk and money, talk to an expert in the field. Your Agway Farm Enterprise Salesperson.

Sheep, Livestock Show Highlights Beaver Fair

KREAMER (Beaver Co.) — A Dorset ewe was named supreme champion and a Southdown ram named supreme ram recently at the Beaver Community Fair Breeding Sheep and Youth Livestock Show.

Also, the youth livestock sale raised a total of $13,017.63 through the support of a number of agricultural businesses and individuals.

Jenny Zerby holds the banner over her grand champion market lamb as buyers hold up their business sign.

From the left, Bob Livingston, judge, and Lewis Meiser Jr., present a $50 savings bond to Jenny Zerby after declaring her Dorset ewe to be the supreme ewe of the Beaver Community Fair.

Most of the sale money went directly to the youth, which is normally used for reinvestment and savings.

However, of that money, $313 was raised during the auction to help raise funds for building a livestock barn at the Beaver Community Fairgrounds.

The money was raised when first-round lamb buyers put the animals back in the ring to specifically raise money for the barn, and the Lewis Meiser family donated a lamb soley for the purpose of raising funds for that purpose. That lamb was sold three times.

The open and junior breeding sheep show covered a number of different sheep breeds. However, six of the 11 breeds represented were entries by one breeder.

Robert Richard, Beavertown, showed the Cheviots; Steven Erb, Beavertown, showed the Corriedale; Tiffany Hoffman, Kreamer, showed the Suffolk; Matthew Zerby, Beavertown, showed Columbia; Josh Eberly, Troxelville, showed Oxford, and the Lewis Meiser family, of Mt. Pleasant Mills, showed Polypay. Therefore, each of these exhibitors automatically were presented grand champion awards for the breed.

Nevertheless, the quality of the animals was excellent, according to show officials.

In the Dorset breed, Jenny Zerby, Beavertown, showed the grand champion ewe which later went on to be declared supreme ewe of the show, and she also showed the champion ram. There were a total of five different breeders registered in the Dorset show.

In the Hampshire breed, Henry Zerby, of Beavertown, showed both the champion ram and ewe. Zerby was one of five different breeders showing Hampshires.

In the Shropshire breed, Greg Erb, Beavertown, showed the grand champion ram, while Deborah Etzler, Beavertown, showed the grand champion ewe. There were three breeders showing animals in this show.

In the Southdown breed, competition was between three breeders with Luke Zerby showing the champion ewe and the ram, which later was named supreme champion ram.

The champion Tunis ram and ewe was shown by Wendy Pursley, of Mt. Pleasant Mills. The Meiser family also showed the tan and brown Tunis.

In the livestock show, the grand champion market hog was shown by Steve Erb, while the reserve champion was shown by Jason Woodling.

Erb's 222-pound champion hog was purchased by Corey Klingler, of Klingler's Produce for $1.85 per pound. Woodling's reserve champion weighed 218 pounds and brought $1.25 bid from Len Hummel, buying for Hoss's Steak and Seahouse.

Overall, the market hog show and sale was the largest with 39 head sold for an average $1.57 per pound, raising a total of $5,322.

The champion market lamb was shown by Jenny Zerby, who sold the 127-pound lamb for $2.45 per pound to Hassinger-Courtney Auctioneering. The 114-pound reserve champion market lamb was shown by Johanna Kodlick and sold to Kish Vet Service for $1.75 per pound.

Overall, the lamb sale generated $2,768.13 on 28 head for an average per pound of $1.07, not counting the resale fund-raising.

In the market steer show, Wayne Hassinger showed the grand champion, a 1,260-pound animal which he sold to Hoss's for $1.60 per pound, or $2,016.

The reserve champion was shown by Jason Woodling, and was purchased by Klinger's Produce for 85 cents per pound. With his steer weighing 1,160 pounds, Woodling earned $986 with the sale.

The sale of four steers brought a total of $4,514, or an average of 93 cents per pound.

In the market rabbits, Alan Pursley Jr., a 4-H member, showed the champion pen of meat rabbits, selling the pair for $22.50 to Harold Meiser, of Meiserville Milling Co.

The reserve pen of rabbits was shown by Larissa Baney, who sold her pair to Brett Middleswarth, buyer for Middleswarth Chips, for $20.

Overall, the six pair of meat rabbits earned $100 and averaged $16.66 per pair.

Best management practices and water quality are important management activities on Pennsylvania dairy farms.

The 90's will be the time when agriculture finds itself intimately involved with national and local programs to improve and protect water quality. Factories, strip mines, municipalities and many others have had to invest in pollution control facilities, which they didn't want.

These same people are now looking over the fence and asking, "What about farmers?"

Nutrient management reports and more detailed record keeping are two changes farmers will make.

Dairy farmers need to take steps to prepare for this situation. Long range plans need to include manure disposal. Points to consider include:

- Adequate cropland to utilize all manure nutrients in crop growth.
- Control and safe disposal of feedlot and exercise lot nunoff water.
- Approved milking center wastewater disposal.
- Storage and handling systems constructed and maintained to prevent loss of manure by spillage, leaching or structure failure.
- Fences, guards and signs to protect and warn workers and visitors of dangers involved with manure storage and handling facilities.
- Record keeping systems for manure application.

Farmers should be aware of state and local plans and activities concerning manure handling and water pollution. Farm organizations, extension offices, SCS, and federal, state and local officials can all help keep you informed of plans.

Be sure your elected representatives know your concerns on this issue. An active involved farm community will be critical to establishing reasonable procedures and regulations for manure handling and environmental protection. Feeding and milking cows will not be enough to be a successful dairy farmer.

Forage Lab Prices Change

BOB ORMSBY
Training Coordinator

PA DHIA works in conjunction with the Northeast DHIA Forage Lab to provide forage analysis service to PA DHIA members.

A recent newsletter from the lab revealed that they are setting records for volume of business and also for reduced turnaround time (TAT). Their goal is to provide members with a quality analysis as quickly as possible.

PA DHIA supervisors and technicians are provided with sample mailer kits and the samples are either mailed or sent UPS directly to Ithaca. Results can be returned by FAX, electronic mail, or postal service.

The new prices reflect a change requested by members that the NDF be included in the basic analysis package. It does result in a cost savings to those requesting NDF as a separate analysis.

The 1991 Forage Lab Survey also revealed that 90 percent of the respondents preferred that soluble protein be expressed as a percentage of the crude protein, and 83 percent use the energy values as reported.

The newsletter also points out that this year's atypical weather is resulting in anything but average forages. With low milk prices, this is not a good year to estimate forage quality. Fine tune your rations with accurate forage analyses.

03	Wet Chemistry	$27.50

DON'T OPERATE IN THE RED !

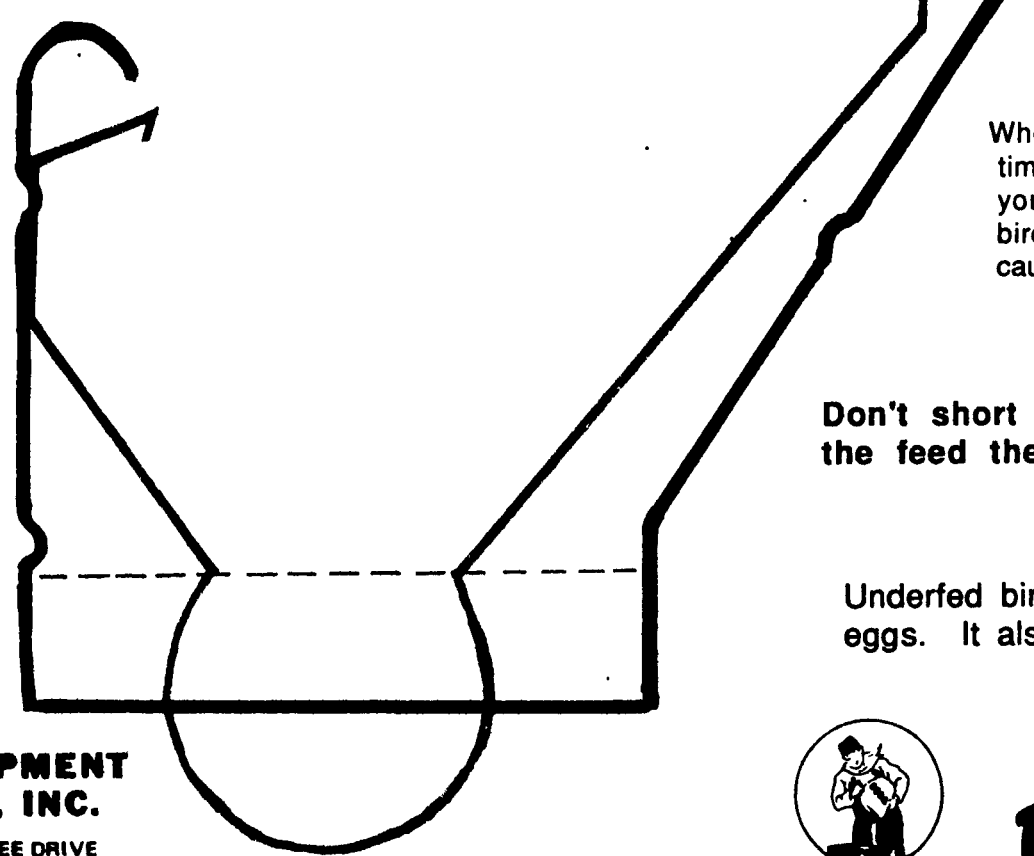
HELP YOUR FARM OPERATE IN THE BLACK !

The Big Dutchman Champion chain feed trough allows 3 1/4" wide feed area in front of the cage. The grind auger only 1 1/4". At 9 birds in a 24" cage, this means that Big Dutchman gives each bird 8 2/3 square inches of feed area, the drag auger only a mere 3 1/3.

The superior design of the Big Dutchman trough reduces spillage because of the extra high lip and curl.
The drag auger trough wastes feed.

The increased feed space in the Big Dutchman trough allows us to run the feeder as few as 3 times per day while the limited feed space of the auger trough forces the grower to run the feeders at least 8 times daily.

Big Dutchman has over 2 1/2 times more feed space per bird



When you increase the number of times the feeder has to be run, you also increase stress on the birds and movement in the cage causing excess damaged eggs.

Most local producers now realize the value of the chain feeder over the grind auger.

Don't short change your birds of the feed they need for Production !

Underfed birds means less large eggs. It also means less profits.

title at the Maryland State Fair earlier this fall, and won the title again at the All-American Dairy Show in Harrisburg, Pa., two weeks ago.

Judging the International Holstein Show, at which Astro Kat was named grand champion of the Holstein breed, was Ken Empey, of Ontario, Canada. Empey declared she was just a "super, super fine cow, the kind I would like to own."

Assisting Ken Empey was Dr. Gary Rogers, of University Park, Pa., as associate judge.

The World Dairy Expo in Madison is the Super Bowl of the dairy industry. It is quite an honor and accomplishment to achieve supreme champion status. Although Gayridge farm was a co-owner of the 1988 Grand Champion Holstein, Cathland Lilac, and again in 1989 with C Hanson Prestar Mona Lisa at Madison, Kat is their first to be chosen supreme. This makes C Rossland Astro Kat the best cow in the world.

Mary Louise Wilcom of Gayridge said, "When I phoned my husband, I said we're no longer a bridesmaid we're the bride!"

Gayridge and Kingstead also had first placings in the senior 3-year-old and 4-year-old cow classes and were named premier exhibitor.

Cattle exhibited at the Expo came from 13 states, four countries and two Canadian providence. Guests and spectators were estimated to be the largest crowd ever for this 25th anniversary celebration. There were 2,600 international guests from 63 countries. Commercial and craft exhibitors numbered more than 600.

John Andrew Foster III, of Petersburg, Pa., had the first place 2-year-old in the junior division. In placing the 39 2-year-old cows, Judge Empey commented that this was the best 2-year-old class he ever placed and that he was honored to judge such an outstanding class of cows.

The World Classic Holstein Sale was held on Friday evening offering 51 consignments. The sale averaged $9,776 per head. The highest selling female was an embryo transfer (ET) of Hilltop Hanover-B Mark Dove-ET, Blackmoor M-S Daisy and sired by To-Mar Blackstar-ET, consigned by Kathleen Seidel of Bellemeade, NJ. She was purchased for $40,000 by Irishtown Partnership, Queenstown, Md.

The top offering, known as the Fabulous Five, was sold as a package of five males consigned by Lylehaven, East Montpelier, Vt. They were purchased by the Fabulous Five Syndicate c/o Richard Whitaker, Maine, for $100,000.

A second choice male of four male pregnancies due Jan. 31, 1992 out of Lawcrest Rotate Mindy, consigned by S. Armbrust & Crescentmead of Greenbay, Wis., went for $42,000 to the Mindy Syndicate, c/o Richard Lawson, Jamestown, N.Y. The first choice had already been sold to Japan.

Holstein Association, Anitech Introduce Electronic Cow I.D.

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — Animal identification is about to enter the electronic age.

So claimed the CEO of the Holstein Association of America, Steve Kerr, who recently said the dairy industry is more than ready for new technology to reduce labor costs and build profit margins.

Kerr joined Anitech International Chairman Zane Akins at World Dairy Expo, Madison, in describing several applications of the Destron/IDI electronic transponder, which uses radio frequency identification technology.

The transponder, embedded in ordinary, plastic eartags for livestock, carries a 10 digit number which can be read by hand-held or gateway stationary readers.

The animal identification information can be coupled with automated milking and feeding systems already on farms, and used for record keeping by AI technicians, veterinarians and milk recording supervisors.

"We are helping dairymen achieve efficient management systems, and accurate animal identification is the key element for labor-efficient record keeping. We believe it's necessary to actively support the advancement of electronic identification technology," Kerr said.

The Holstein executive said the association is looking forward to incorporating electronic identification in its registry and animal identification processes, herd classification, and performance information systems.

The Holstein Association is the nation's largest dairy breed organization. It registers and identifies nearly 400,000 Holsteins each year, and maintains a database of 16 million animal identities.

Akins, said Anitech International was able to advance the release date of electronic identification by embedding transponders in eartags, with which farmers are already familiar. They offer the advantage of visible identification, as well as communicate with electronic readers and computer systems.

Anitech is continuing to collect data on transponders implanted under the skin of animals, Akins said, and the Food and Drug Administration is reviewing the information for effects on animal and food safety.

Some dairymen may favor the implants, once they're approved, Akins said, but the eartags are here now, and they are an inexpensive alternative to magnetic transponders.

Maryland Holstein Futurity Deadline Nears

CHESTERTOWN, Md. — The deadline for signup for the 1994 Maryland Holstein Futurity is Oct. 31. The event is open to all Holstein breeders in the Old Line State.

The estimated total prize money is $4,730 with purse awards ranging from $800 for first place to $30 for 30th place.

Additionally, $260 is to be divided and awarded to those first five "wins" shown in the 3-year-old futurity class, based on production. Only official DHIA or DHIR reports will be used and they must accompany the animals.

The event, number 11, is sponsored and governed by the Maryland Holstein Futurity Committee of the Maryland Holstein Association.

Those wishing to participate need to submit pedigree information on female calves born from September 1990 to August 31, 1991. Application must be made on an official entry form available through the Maryland Holstein Association, but there is no restriction on the number of entries.

According to the entry form rules, the purpose of the futurity is to " . . . stimulate interest in the breeding and exhibiting of outstanding registered Hoslteins in Maryland. It recognizes the accomplishments of the small and the large breeder and the FFA and 4-H boy or girl."

The futurity class has been held in conjunction with the Maryland State Fair and tentative plans are for that to continue. The show typically has been held on the Sunday before Labor Day in any given year. In 1994, that would be August 28.

For an animal to remain in the contest, all four payments (nominations) must be made on time. The first payment, due Oct. 31, is $2.50 per animal. Consecutive payments are $3 by July 31, 1992; $6 due by April 31, 1993; and a final payment of $10 due by Jan. 31, 1994.

If, during the course of the three years prior to the show, an owner of a nominated animal decides to sell the animal, the new owner can retain eligibility of the animal in the futurity, as long as the futurity committee is made aware of the change in ownership and the payments are made according to schedule.

For more information, contact John Hall, chairman, at RD2, Box 165, Chestertown, Md., 21620. Or call him at (301) 778-1768.

Beef Show At KILE

Jr. Beef Breeding Show. With Angus heifer winner is Diana and Jeff Covell, Clarksburg, Maryland.

Grand champion Salers in the Jr. Breeding show with Sandy Urbanick, Conneautville.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Beef cattle exhibitions made up a large part of the Keystone International Livestock Exposition (KILE), held from October 3 - 7 at the State Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg. KILE, the premier indoor exposition of livestock on the North American continent, was sponsored by the Pennsylvania Livestock Association in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and the Pennsylvania State Farm Products Show Commission.

6 of over 64 breeds of beef cattle are represented at KILE. The breeds include Angus, Limousin, Polled Hereford, Salers, Shorthorn, and Simmental. 609 individual cattle were registered for KILE events.

Events included competition for premiums and special awards, separated by sex and age categories.

Notable events at the show included the exhibition of Saler cattle, a European breed known for its moderate size and quality carcass, which is beginning to become established on this continent.

Another notable event included the Polled Hereford Standard of Perfection Show. One of only two such shows in the country, the Polled Hereford SOP show involves a combination of measurements along with visual appraisal by three judges. This information is entered into a microcomputer, which then generates the list of winners.

Expositions such as KILE enable livestock owners to get expert opinions on their stock and compare their animals with those of other breeders. In this way, the overall quality of championship-bred animals can be furthered.

Dutch Country Calf Sale Features Youth Conference

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — For the second year, a pre-sale youth conference will be featured at the Dutch County Calf Sale, held at the Lebanon Fairgrounds, Saturday, Oct. 26.

Experts in the field of fitting and showing beef cattle will supply advice and technical information to all participants, free of charge.

The youth conference starts at 10:30 a.m. and is to be followed by the club calf sale at 1:30 p.m.

The conference experts include Keninanne Rarick, who has been showing beef calves since shw was a 4-Her growing up in Berks County. She is to supply tips to young beef exhibitors on blocking and fitting a calf, along with a discussion on how to present a calf in the showring.

Also, Dr. Lynn Sammons, of Willow Creek Animal Hospital, is to provide information on how to keep a club calf healthy and will discuss when and when not to use medications and drugs.

Lancaster County native Chris Herr has exhibited numerous entries to the Pennsylvania Farm Show and other major livestock events. He will be sharing his experiences in raising a Farm Show champion steer, which Chris accomplished in 1980.

Also speaking is Chad Cash, a regional manager of Purina Mills, who is to discuss feeding beef calves for market and how to achieve optimum results.

"This is the second year we have brought together some of the industry's most experienced people to provide an interesting and informative morning for young people and parents, alike," said Sheila Miller, sale chairman.

"Last year's event was a great success, and I heard positive comments from all the kids who came out. I believe even the most experienced 4-Her will walk away from this pre-sale youth conference with something beneficial. I hope all county clubs take advantage of this free conference."

This year's sale will feature 24 calves in the ring to be auctioned by Harry Bachman, of Annville. Judge Ron Miller is to select a champion and reserve champion calf before the sale.

Crossbred steer consignments combine Angus, Chianina, Simmental, and Maine Anjou bloodlines in combinations.

Also selling are two purebred Angus steers and three purebred Polled Hereford steers. Females are also selling in this year's sale.

Messick Farm of Middletown will be consigning a registered Simmental heifer and MAP Farm of Womelsdorf will be consigning a registered Polled Hereford.

Several calves sold at previous Dutch Country Calf Sales have earned grand championship titles at fairs.

Kelly Bachman, Annville, showed her crossbred calf, bred by Elmer Stehman of Robesonia, to grand champion at the 1990 Lebanon Area Fair.

Jeremy Manwiller, Robesonia, showed his purebred Polled Hereford steer bred by Deitschland Farm, Womelsdorf, to grand champion honors at the 1990 Kimberton Fair, Chester County and the Denver Fair, Lancaster County.

Junior exhibitors who show their Dutch Country calves to champion honors are eligible to receive $50 gift certificates on a purchase of another calf at the next calf sale.

The Fourth Dutch County Calf Sale consignors include Eastern Land & Resources, Elene Hitz, Annville; Geri and John Gammel, Womelsdorf; Ken Hebel, Grantville; Mitch Leonarski, Williamstown, N.J.; MAP Farm, Womelsdorf; Messick Farm, Middletown; Emilie Miller/Deitschland Farm, Womelsdorf; Rolling Shade Polled Herefords, East Greenville; Elmer Stehman, Robesonia; and Weaverland Valley Farms & Kristin Chupp.

For more information about the Dutch Country Calf Sale or the pre-sale youth conference, call Sheila Miller at (215) 589-5617, or write to Dutch Country Calf Sale, c/o Sheila Miller, sale chairman, RD1, Box 325, Womelsdorf, Pa., 19567.

Landis's Sale Lamb Is Overall Grand At Manheim

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Wendall Landis showed the overall grand champion market lamb at the Manheim Farm Show sheep show Thursday night, edging out Travis Donough who showed the supreme champion market hog and steer of the show.

Landis's heavyweight sale lamb — a market lamb that was put up for sale Friday night — captured judge Ron Miller's eye over Donough's sale lamb, although Miller praised both lambs for their quality.

Miller, manager of Wey Farm, Kutztown, said, "I've seen good sheep both years I've been judge here. The (overall market lamb) champion is easily the champion sale lamb (Landis's lamb). I pick the reserve champion sale lamb as the (overall) reserve champion. Both these lambs are impressive in total pounds finish and pounds of meat they'll yield."

Among the breeding sheep show, Regina Landis's Shropshire ewe lamb was named supreme breeding animal over all seven breeds represented and both the rams and ewes.

Two Shows, Two Champions For Donough At Manheim Farm Show

Matt Hoover, 13, a seventh grader at Manheim Central, right, won market steer reserve champion at Manheim with "Butch," a 1,315-pound Simmental/Polled Hereford cross on Tuesday night. Lebanon Co. agent Ken Winebark judged the show.

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — The night before, Travis Donough, 11, Sporting Hill Elementary, sweeps the swine show.

Another day goes by, and Travis, wielding the reigns to the red, slightly antsy, definitely shy, surely competitive 1,370-pound Maine Anjou/Angus steer, "Buster," caps another championship.

Travis showed the champion 4-H heavyweight steer, which became grand champion overall Tuesday night at one of the coldest Manheim Fairs on record.

But a large crowd, many with winter coats, watched the champion steer display "a great deal of expression," according to Ken Winebark, Lebanon Co. agent, who judged the show.

"It has a thickness and a depth of expression right from the top on through the rump," he said. "It overwhelms other steers in the class in terms of muscles and will offer a carcass with a lot of muscle to sell to the consumer, a sound-footed type of calf."

Another red steer, this one a 1,315-pound Simmental/Polled Hereford cross from the lightweight class, won reserve overall champion. The champion, nicknamed "Butch," was exhibited by Matt Hoover, 13, a seventh grader at Manheim Central.

Showmanship champions included John Hess, 12 years and under; Lori Harnish, 13-16 years old; and Sharon Harnish, 17 years and over.

Consider Field Or Contour Strips

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — "With corn silage coming off and grain harvest in progress, now is the time to consider putting in field or contour strips," said Randy McCormack, district conservationist with the USDA Soil Conservation Service in Berks County.

"Producers enrolled in any USDA programs with Farm Bill plans calling for stripcropping are encouraged to review their plans and contact the Soil Conservation Service for strip layout," he said.

"In order for a producer to maintain eligibility for future USDA programs, he must apply all his conservation practices on his FSA plans by January 1, 1995," said McCormack.

For more information, contact the Berks County Soil Conservation Service at (215) 372-4655.

their bottom line than the bottom line down at the farm.

If we pull together, we can price our product here in the Northeast, at least for a period, until Washington finishes studying the M-W price series, component pricing, regionalization, and of course BST.

I'm sorry, but I don't think Washington will ever get anything done at the snail's pace that they work. There is nothing on the table at present that even comes close to a price that exceeds the cost of production.

The only thing on paper at present that approaches reality is the "National Dairy Act of 1991." It is time for all farmers to get behind this program and fight for it.

Why is the administration in Washington so opposed to two-tier pricing? Can they come up with a better plan to stabilize the farm economy or do they even want to?

So long as we have farm price regulation, why should we not have regulation at the retail level?

The GAO indicated that the retail sector reaped $1 billion in excess profits during the first six months of 1991, and so it goes. They put the least into that gallon of milk and get back the most by far and no one seems to care. The old corporate bottom line again.

Now we have the cereal companies announcing a 4-percent increase in prices in anticipation of higher grain prices due to the misfortune of the Midwest grain farmer.

Is there no conscience out there? The old bottom line again.

A strengthened farm economy would go a long way toward solving many of the general economic problems. Farmers spend their money if they have it.

Why, if there is such a surplus of dairy products, have the school lunch programs been cut back 30 percent on cheese? Far too many of today's children get their primary nutrition at school and cheese is nutritious and now not as available.

Why?

Still tired of being stonewalled,

Ken Dibbell

Conferences To Address Groundwater

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — High quality water is vital to the health and economic well-being of Pennsylvanians. Nearly 40 percent of state residents rely on groundwater for their drinking water.

"Three-quarters of a billion gallons of groundwater are withdrawn in Pennsylvania every day by industrial, agricultural, and domestic users," said Dr. Charles Abdalla, Penn State associate professor of agricultural economics and co-director of the Pennsylvania Groundwater Policy Education Project.

"Existing laws do little to resolve conflicts that arise when homeowner or community groundwater supplies are degraded by activities occurring beyond political or property boundaries," Abdalla said. "To preserve this resource, people must become more informed about groundwater issues and take part in public policy and land-use decisions."

Supported by a grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation, the Groundwater Policy Education Project is sponsoring several regional conferences to help local officials, community groups, and concemed citizens enhance local groundwater management and education. The project is a joint effort of Penn State Cooperative Extension and the League of Women Voters of Pennsylvania Citizen Education Fund.

Conferences will be held in Pittsburgh at Penn State's Altoona Campus (October 12); in Carlisle at Dickinson College (October 26); in West Chester at Chester County Hospital School of Nursing (November 2); and at Penn State's Hazleton Campus (November 9).

"One goal of the conferences is to provide information to local officials and planners about the overall effects many of their decisions can have on groundwater quality and quantity," said project co-director Edith Stevens, a water specialist with the League of Women Voters. "We also hope to inform participants about some of the local management tools available to help protect regional groundwater sources."

The conferences will feature speakers from Horsley Witten Hegemann, Inc., a well-known consulting firm that provides training on well head protection programs for the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. Experts familiar with local hydrogeology will discuss local groundwater characteristics and present regional examples of community groundwater protection programs.

Other topics of discussion will include contamination sources, coalition building, working with local governments, and developing leadership skills.

Following the conferences, community groups will be encouraged to join forces to develop local groundwater education projects. As part of its Kellogg grant, the Groundwater Policy Education Project in coming months will fund selected local educational programs that will serve as models for other communities.

For more information, or to register for one of the regional conferences, call the League of Women Voters Citizen Information Center at (800) 692-7281.

tural community in Pennsylvania."

Amos Funk, who operated the Amos Funk farm on South Duke Street in Millersville until a recent retirement, said that "Dick Thornburgh is not a promiser. He's a doer. His record proves that."

According to Funk, in the two years of the governorship of the state, Thornburgh introduced "four bills important to agriculture." Those include:

- Act 100, passed in 1979, the Farmland Condemnation Act, which makes it much more difficult to condemn farmland in Pennsylvania.
- Act 179, 1980, which exempts farm corporations from the corporate stock finance tax. This tax, according to Funk, made it much more difficult to form farm family corporations.
- Act 39, 1980, which made it impossible for aliens or foriegn countries to purchase more than 100 acres of farmland in Pennsylvania.
- Act 207, 1980, a farmland-use value act for certain tax purposes.

According to a statement prepared by the Thornburgh For Senate Committee, other programs initiated by Thornburg include:

- Farmland preservation programs. He signed legislation to keep the state's 58,000 family farmers in business. He reformed the inheritance tax law to value farm property at use, rather than market value, and established a $10 million Family Farm Development Program to provide loan guarantees and interest deferrals for family farmers.
- Promote ag land. Thornburg established a Prime Agricultural Land Policy by Executive Order, secured a "Right To Farm" law, established ag districts, and created an Agricultural Land Condemnation Board.
- Sales of ag products. Thornburg initiated the successful "We're Growing Better" and "Keystone Pride" marketing campaigns. Thornburgh established the Farm Market Loan Program to build or improve more than 60 farmer-owned markets through the state.

Next generation of farmers. Thornburgh established a Governor's School on Agriculture to provide advanced ag training to high school students, and promoted an agricultural curriculum in the public schools. This is program "I was particularly proud of," said Thornburgh.

Addressed animal health problems. The former state governor established an Animal Health Advisory Committee to improve the state's disease control and animal research programs, and solved the avian influenza problem.

"In fact, by the time I finished eight years in office, we had passed some 65 pieces of legislation that were designed to preserve prime agricultural land, preserve the family farm, and promote growth in our agricultural economy," said Thornburgh.

Thornburgh said he was proud of the fact that, during the two campaigns, he had such strong support from the farm community.

He emphasized the importance of listening and learning in the public service.

"Dick Thornburgh has always been a friend of agriculture," said Funk in the statement. "He is a sgtrong supporter with a proven record of helping family farmers and agribusiness."

Foraging Around

By Dr. John E. Baylor
Forage Specialist (Retired)
Penn State University

Fundamentals Of Forage Fertilization

It occurs to me that for one or more of several reasons — the farm economy, this year's severe heat and drought in many areas, your concern for effective nutrient management — you may have lost sight of the continued importance of a sound forage fertility program. So in this month's column I'd like to get back to basics and review just what a sound fertility program means to you.

Fertilizer is, in the opinion of many experts, one of the most, if not the most, important inputs to profitable forage yields. However, with today's rapidly changing prices — both for production inputs and farm products — it's hard to come up with specific figures on net returns from fertilization. And, of course, fertilizer responses depend on soil fertility levels at the time fertilizer is applied. That's why a regular soil testing program is so essential.

Forage Fertilization Dividends

Adequate fertilization, based on soil testing, can give your forage crops a big boost in a number of ways. It helps seedlings get off to a fast start. It assures consistently higher yields. It helps plants survive winter better. It permits earlier, more frequent cutting for top quality. And it helps plants recover better from insect attacks and other stresses.

An added bonus, say many animal scientists, is that fertilizer applications may also initiate a host of chemical and physiological changes in forage plants than can affect, significantly, the health and nutritional status of animals consuming the forage.

Fertilizing Established Legume Stands

For established legumes, especially alfalfa, potassium is the key to high yields, high quality forage, and long-lived stands. But phosphorus is important too. Legumes actually need about one-third as much phosphorus as potassium. But, since phosphorus moves slowly in the soil, it may take time before the plants respond.

Generally, when potassium and phosphorus are applied to legumes is not critical — if adequate amounts are applied for the growth period. For single applications, apply now, or as soon as possible after the last harvest. Where higher rates of fertilizer are needed, split applications, one-half now and one-half after first cutting may be best.

What is important is the ratio of phosphate to potash in your top-dressing fertilizer. In fact many studies suggest a fertilizer ratio of 0-1-4 (N, P_2O_5, K_2O) may be best on most soils for intensive, high yielding legume production.

Based on Pennsylvania studies, and the data from our alfalfa growers program, for alfalfa at least, annual applications of 100-pound P_2O_5 per acre and 400 pounds K_2O per acre may be about right for yield goals of 6 to 8 tons of hay equivalent per acre. However, a soil test is still your best guide.

And while phosphorus and potassium are the key nutrients for top legume yields, secondary elements and micronutrients may also be important. Of the former, several research trials show alfalfa responding to sulfur fertilization. And boron should be applied annually at the rate of at least two pounds per acre.

Fertilizing Established Grasses

Cool season grasses need all three major, nutrients — nitrogen, phosphorus, and potassium. However, nitrogen is the key to higher yields and quality. Normally for cool season grasses, such as orchardgrass, a split application of nitrogen (60 pounds in early spring, another 40-50 pounds after each cutting) is considered best.

However, I've just reviewed some Virginia research on orchardgrass suggesting that some nitrogen (40# N/A) applied right now, either as N fertilizer or as manure, may actually result in more vigorous, weed-free orchardgrass stands that last longer than those maintained under more traditional fertilization practices. The verdict is still out on this but it is something to consider.

Animal Manures

Speaking of manure, there's no doubt that the use of properly handled and stored animal manure can greatly reduce your fertilizer needs, especially on cool season grasses.

Manure contains the three major plant nutrients — N, P_2O_5, and K_2O — as well as other nutrients. Normally we would not recommend applications of manure to good young (1 or 2 years) stands of legumes. However, summer or fall applications can be effectively made on old legume or legume-grass stands, or pure grass stands.

One caution — don't count on the manure to supply all of the nitrogen. And, when used, it should be applied to fields at the rate which supplies just the amount of nutrients used by the crop.

In this regard, a manure analysis can be very helpful. And it, along with a good soil testing program, can save fertilizer and also keep soil nutrient levels in place.

NFU Members Speak To Madigan

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Twenty-four members of the National Farmers Union (NFU) told U.S. Agriculture Secretary Edward Madigan that the Bush Administration needs to begin focusing attention on the immediate needs of American farmers in addition to activities in the international arena.

The Farmers Union delegation, headed by NFU President Leland Swenson, told Madigan that "sensible, reasonable, and significant changes" in U.S. farm policies are necessary for the survival of family farm producers.

"I agree with Senator (Robert) Dole (R-KS) when he calls the farm economy a 'house of cards,'" Swenson said in reference to a letter Dole sent to the White House last week.

The Farmers Union members, in Washington lobbying as part of an NFU legislative "fly-in," told Madigan that immediate action is needed to reform federal dairy policy and to provide disaster assistance to farmers whose crops were hurt by weather disasters this year.

The Farmers Union members articulated the hardships they are facing because of low prices for milk, grains, and livestock. They believe policies that would provide incentives for production management are the key to their survival on the farm.

A proposed two-tier dairy program, under which farmers would be discouraged from overproducing as a way to stabilize market forces, is an example of the kind of program the farmers say they want. Although a version of the two-tier proposal did not make it through Congress before the August recess and is still pending, NFU is pushing to have it considered again before lawmakers adjourn for the year.

But the farmers said Madigan was intransigent about the dairy bill. "He expressed no willingness whatsoever to negotiate or compromise at all on a supply-management program for dairy," said Swenson.

The secretary did say however that he was willing to support up to a billion dollars in disaster assistance for farmers if it can be done this fiscal year, which ends September 30.

company, a transducer is placed on the top of the animal. Sound waves penetrate the hide and create an image of the carcass quality — on a live animal.

Pelvic measurements were used to determine calving ease and ability, conducted by Dr. Julie Holland at KILE. Holland used a "pelvimeter" or pelvic meter to measure the height and width of the pelvis area.

"Sometimes you can look at a mature cow and you think, a 147-pound calf may be possible for her," said Holland. "But maybe not. And then others, you think can calve at 47 pounds. But maybe not. These measurements can accurately determine calving capability."

The measurements taken went into the final decisions of the judges on Sunday. A composite score was formed and shown to the audience.

Objective data scored included expected progeny differences (EPDs) for birth weight, weaning weight, yearling weight, and maternal milk; frame score; fat thickness; and standardized ribeye area.

Subjective traits for consideration in the visual score include structural soundness, feet, mobility, capacity, muscling, eyes, sheaths, udders and teats, and general eye appeal.

The American Polled Hereford Association calls the show the "next generation" of show ring evaluation. The Polled Hereford breed's aim is to provide the nation's cow herd with the traits most needed for economic viability, according to a spokesperson.

Dr. Jim Stouffer, Animal Ultrasound Service, Inc., conveys data from a computer image analyzer of the ribeye area of a Polled Hereford heifer to a database. Ultrasound technology measures ribeye circumference and backfat thickness in cattle. This information was used to judge cattle at the Polled Hereford Association Genetic Focus Show last week at KILE.

PDA Offers Low Interest Loans For Improving Agriculture

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff this week advised farmers and processors that they can apply for low-interest loans through a program that promotes the use of new technology in Pennsylvania.

Applications to the Agricultural Technology Loan Program (ATLP) will be accepted from Oct. 15 through Dec. 31.

"This program represents a tremendous opportunity for Pennsylvania farmers to take advantage of leading edge technology designed to increase efficiency and productivity," Wolff said. "It's another part of our ongoing effort to support and promote agriculture, our number one industry."

Matching loans of up to $50,000 are available at an interest rate of half the federal discount rate. Last year's loan rate was 3.5 percent.

Farmers demonstrating the greatest need and proposing the most innovative use of technology will be awarded the low-cost loans for projects that will increase productivity or provide entry into new product areas.

Farmers can apply for the loans by contacting Chris Herr in the Bureau of Agricultural Development at (717) 783-8460.

Plans Under Review

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — The U.S. Department of Agriculture is reviewing 5 percent of approved Food Security Act (FSA) compliance plans in Berks County to determine the status of practice application.

In Berks County, 1,200 to 1,300 FSA plans have been completed with 60 producers selected for review this fall.

The review will compare scheduled conservation practices and treatments called for in the farmer's FSA plan with progress in applying these practices. The Soil Conservation Service will then determine if the producer is actively applying the plan, not actively applying the plan, or whether the conservation system in the plan has been fully applied.

"In order for a producer to maintain eligibility for future USDA programs, he must apply all his conservation practices by January 1, 1995," said Randy McCormack, district conservationist for the Soil Conservation Service in Berks County.

For more information, contact the Soil Conservation Service, (215) 372-4655.

Soybean Farmers Pleased

ST. LOUIS, MO. — U.S. soybean farmers are "extremely pleased" with the allocation of $73 million in GSM 102 funds for soybeans and the increase of $99 million for protein meal, said American Soybean Association President Gary Riedel.

"We're excited about the prospect of additional export credits for soybeans to the Soviet Union," said Riedel. "This fits right in with our plans to open an office in the Soviet Union to provide the technical assistance they need to make the best use of our soybeans and soybean products."

Riedel said the announcement verifies ASA beliefs that the Soviet Union needs and wants U.S. soybeans and soybean meal. He said the allocation adds to soybean farmers' optimism about the future for U.S. soybeans in the Soviet market and he looked forward to continued expansion of the Soviet market.

Heifers Fly To Egypt As Part Of Project

Harrisburg, (Dauphin Co.) — Last week, 88 heifers and six bulls flew from Harrisburg Airport to Cairo, Egypt, to be provided to poor farm families in the central area of that country.

This shipment is the third in a series that has spanned more than a decade of cooperation between the Evangelical Coptic Church of Egypt and churches in the United States, through Heifer project International.

The cattle will spend a short quarantine time in Cairo, and then be moved to a farm operated by the Coptic Evangelical Organization for Social Services (CEOSS) in the center of the country, near Minia. From there heifers will be distributed to farmers who have been trained in the care of dairy cattle, and who have prepared facilities for the animal.

Pure bred bulls produced in the project will be further distributed to rural communities, to be used for cross breeding with local cattle, in order to improve milk production in those communities.

Milk products are an important component of the Egyptian diet, especially for children. However, production is not keeping pace with the rapidly growing population and demand for dairy products. Since Egypt has a very small band of arable land (only about 5% of the total land area of the country is suitable for crop production), the most effective way to increase the availability of milk and milk products is to increase the productivity of the dairy cattle.

Crossbred dairy cattle have been shown to do very well under small farm conditions, producing 3 to 5 times the amount of milk as local cattle, while consuming only 20 percent to 30 percent more feed. The program of CEOSS will not only provide improved cattle, as a result of this shipment, but CEOSS staff will train recipients in the care and feeding of the cattle, and will provide follow-up contact with participating farmers.

All programs supported by Heifer Project International adhere to the principle of "Passing on the Gift." When a family receives an animal, they agree to pass on the first offspring of the same sex to another needy family. In this way, the gift is multiplied through offspring, and the project continues to grow with each passing year.

Heifer Project International (HPI) was founded in 1944, when the first shipment of cattle was sent to Puerto Rico. Many boatloads of cattle were sent to Europe as part of the war reconstruction effort. By 1950, the program had expanded to include all food, fiber and traction animals, such as goats, chickens, sheep, bees and oxen. In many cases, HPI is able to purchase animals within the project area, and often uses indigeneous animals, such as water buffalo, yaks, and alpacas. The goal of the project is to assist people who want to produce their own food, using livestock that are appropriate to the situation.

Extension To Celebrate Birthday

NAZARETH (Northampton Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension in Northampton County will celebrate its 75th anniversary with special events planned during 1992.

They are very interested in presenting a history of cooperative extension and would like to speak with those who were a part of the extension program 10, 20, or even 50 or more years ago.

All former agents, staff, and 4-H members who have lost contact with cooperative extension but would like to hear about or be a part of the activities should contact the Northampton office at (215) 746-1970 between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. or Joan Rohn at (215) 258-5959.

Cawley Party Set

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — After more than 12 years, Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Wayne A. Cawley, Jr., the dean of the Governor's Cabinet, is going back to the farm.

The restaurant is located at Route 175 and the Baltimore-Washington Parkway. For a donation of $25 per person, the evening will include open bar, buffet dinner, a roast of Secretary Cawley, music, and dancing.

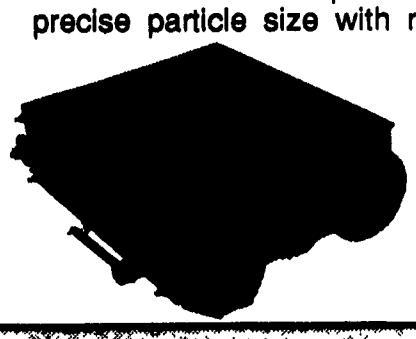
If you wish to attend, or if you cannot attend but wish to contribute toward a gift, contact Steve Connelly, Maryland Department of Agriculture, 50 Harry S. Truman Parkway, Annapolis, MD 21401, (301) 841-5894.

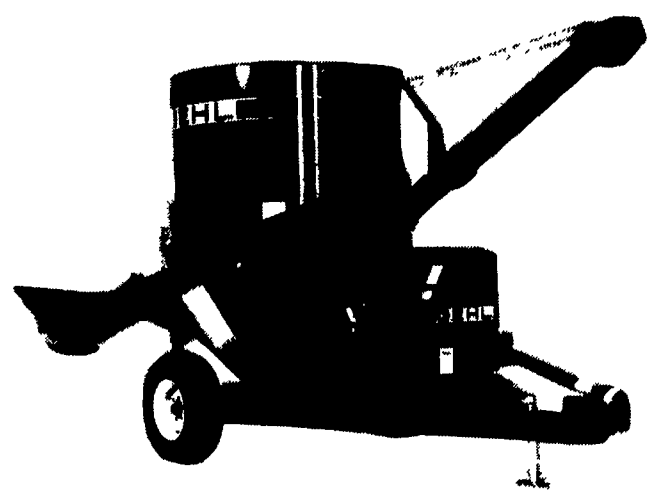
GEHL

Roller Mixer
The Industry Leader

We've combined the proven features and advantages of our Mix-All with a commercial grade roller mill to give you the best portable roller mill feed maker available today.

A Gehl roller mill produces a coarse feed of precise particle size with reduced dust and "flour" in the feed. That means optimum gain for your livestock.





A heavy-duty, commercial grade roller mill features deep grooved rolls that uniformly reduce grain to a pre-determined particle size for maximum nutritional value.

Gehl TMR Mixer Feeders Are #1

Nothing can maximize the return on investment in your dairy or beef feeding operation like a Total Mixed Ration (TMR) feeding system. And nothing makes TMR work better than a Gehl mixer feeder. Here's why:

- Better Mixing Action - Unique four-auger design creates a double figure-8 mixing pattern for fast and complete mixing of all feed ingredients.
- Energy Efficient - Planetary drive system requires less horsepower.
- Built To Last - Patented star couplers absorb shock loads by allowing the bottom augers to flex, providing long service life.
- Six Sizes - From 150 to 500 cubic feet mixing capacities.
- Three Styles - Trailer type, stationary and truck-mounted units to fit your operation.

48 Firms Become Top Quality Suppliers

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Ford New Holland has honored 48 U.S., Canadian, and Japanese firms with its prestigious "Q1 Preferred Quality Award" for continued excellent quality performance in providing parts to the company, the world's third largest farm and industrial equipment maker.

"We are committed to a concept we call 'continuous quality improvement,'" said Robert M. Gerrity, executive vice president of N.H. Geotech, the holding company formed this spring when Ford New Holland was merged with Fiat Geotech. AgriPro Has New Research Partner

AMES, Iowa — "Symbiotic" was the word used by President Warren Melles of AgriPro Biosciences, Inc. as he described his company's new research partnership with Co-op De Pau, a French seed company.

In a joint announcement, Bruce Rydeen, vice president, AgriPro Business Group and Christian Hiere, deputy managing director of Co-op De Pau, introduced the new 50/50 partnership.

The new relationship will bring additional strength, scope, expertise and world wide germplasm to ABI's existing overall corn research while providing Pau with a direct source of American corn germplasm.

Other products marketed under the AgriPro brand- including soybeans, sorghum, sunflower, and alfalfa, will not be affected by this research agreement.

Mifflin County Farmers' Association Adopts Policies

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

PENNS VALLEY (Mifflin Co.)— Fifty members and guests attended the Mifflin County Farmers' Association's Annual Meeting, held at the Penns Valley Christian Retreat Center to hear Fred Kerr, a member of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association relations department, speak on vocational agriculture programs.

Kerr, one of 13 people appointed by the governor to serve on the PA Advisory Council for Vocational Education, challenged the group to help form a working partnership between school board members, students, teachers, administrators, counselors, business and industry leaders, and parents to develop a successful vocational program, including vocational agriculture.

"We brag about one in five jobs being related to agriculture, yet only a small percentage of these jobs are in production agriculture," Kerr said when speaking of educating and training students for jobs and the disadvantage vo-ag students have in being isolated from regular academic classes. "We are now working with the Department of Education on the integration of academic and vocational programs. Our kids are so academic oriented. We need to get the academic people to become more practical, or more applied. And we need to get vocational programs more academic. They need to be able to do the job, but by the year 2000, for example, 90% of the people will have to be computer literate. We have computer assisted drafting. We need to become more applied in the academic and more academic in the training. So we're looking more at integrating the two."

A business meeting followed Kerr's question and answer period. Policy development chairman Dave Esh presented seven policy resolutions fopr discussion and adoption. The following six policies were adopted:

1. We recommend that enforcement of Pennsylvania's Nutrient Management Ordinance be transferred to and maintained within the PA Department of Agriculture not the PA Department of Environmental Resources.

2. Due to the ineffectiveness of present-day mandatory recycling, we recommend the returnable beverage container deposit can be enacted.

Fred Kerr

3. We recommend that PFA investigate the possibility of the implementation of a national health policy.

4. We recommend an overhaul of the light and sound system in the courtroom.

5. We recommend that taxpayers' dollars not be used to bail out the Pennsylvania Lottery Fund.

6. To regulate the use of LCV's (long combination vehicle), we recommend that the current state regulations on gross weight and maximum length be maintained.

A policy limiting legislator's terms failed to be adopted while another policy, requiring proof of passing a hunter's safety course before buying a hunting license, was referred to the county board for more information. Two write-in policies were also adopted, one requesting that the activities of the state budget committee be open and subject to the same guidelines as other public bodies, with respect to the State Sunshine Law, and another requesting stiffer

Silent Partner Becomes Respected Cattlewoman

SHARON B. SCHUSTER
Maryland Correspondent

UNIONTOWN, Md. — Runnymede sits like a pastoral paradise near historic Uniontown, Maryland. Neatly manicured and lovingly cared for, the 165-acre farm is a picture-perfect family operation.

Virginia "Ginny" Lambert and her husband, Harry "Buzz" Lambert, and her mother, Grace Ownings, tend to the farm, perpetuating the agricultural heritage at Runnymede established by Ginny's father and grandfather in 1942.

"I started going to the sales with my father, Theodore Ownings, in 1979. That's when I really got started," recalled Ginny. Like father, like daughter, Ginny learned the cattle business quickly by helping her father.

"I always was the silent partner with Daddy," she explained. "After he passed away, I came out of the woodwork." Ginny and her mother had a difficult decision to make that April — whether or not to continue raising steers. "Dad died on April 8, 1988. We got cattle the following Friday," said Ginny.

More than a decade and a thousand steers after she started, Runnymede is not only an efficiently run operation but also a way of life.

"To me, April is Christmas," said Ginny. When the first green grass of spring blankets the rolling meadows of Runnymede, Ginny heads for the sale barns of Virginia in search of 100 to 125 steers.

"I go to the graded sales. They usually have better quality cattle," said Ginny. The cattlewoman knows from her years of experience that the "medium 1" grade are the best for her. The markets of Culpepper, Winchester, Marshall, and Madison, Virginia offer graded cattle in lots of 50 to 60. "As a rule, they're fairly uniform. We buy steers at an average weight of 650 to 700 pounds.

Even though Ginny raised a Hereford for a project as a child, she now appreciates the qualities that white-faced black cattle offer. "I like crossbreeds better. They gain weight better and we have very little sickness," she reported.

Ginny and her husband, Harry "Buzz" Lambert, have seen more than 100 head of steers pass through the loading chute where they are perched.

Ginny runs her operation efficiently, down to every detail. "I bought 66 (head) in Marshall at 8 p.m. I stopped along the way home and called Keilholtz Trucking in Thurmont, they hauled for my dad, and at 1:30 a.m., the steers walked off the truck.

At Runnymede, the steers are kept on the 125 acres of pasture until October when they are sold to an order buyer to be placed in a finishing operation.

"They never see the barn except when they are unloaded, loaded, or if they need medical attention," she said. The white bank barn is usually filled with hay, but this year the hay that they made on shares of 21 acres was needed for feed. "We had this barn stuffed with hay before the drought. It was full, but we fed several thousand bales. We fed 40 bales per day from June to September," said Ginny.

The barn is Ginny's domain at Runnymede. "Buzz gave me an automatic head gate for Christmas last year, and I got a generator the year before that," she recalled.

The barnyard wall bears the date 1910. And, it also bears Ginny's initials.

"She put the barnyard wall back together last year," said Buzz proudly.

"Frost had gotten into it."

Ginny said she started putting her initials on her handiwork around the farm — a tradition her father began years ago.

Runnymede is tended to carefully by the whole family. The long lane that leads to the homestead if flanked by pastures full of free-grazing steers. Curious bovine momentarily shift their attention from the lush grass to see who is driving through their pasture. There is "Bubby, Moldy, P.T. (named after the manager of the Winchester stockyard), Moldy and the Preacher who spends more time on his knees eating under the fence." The lane eventually leads to the lovely white farmhouse, where huge trees stand as sentries in the yard.

Runnymede presents such an eye-pleasing landscape, that it was selected as a site for the filming of a Quaker Oats cereal commercial. The sun rises behind the barn every morning and floods the big country kitchen with golden light — just the effect the producers were looking for.

"It was like sitting there waiting for a baby to be born," recalled Ginny. "It was a cold morning, and they had 20 minutes to shoot that scene. The commercial ran for about 6 months and Runnymede received nationwide exposure."

A sign at the entry announces, "Pet Walking Area." It is a reminder to visitors to drive cautiously, and yield the right-of-way to the

TAKING TIME

WHAT TO DO WHEN THE PAY CHECK DOESN'T COME?

Farm income and commodity prices can be unpredictable. For instance, many farmers counted on getting higher prices for this year's soybean crops than they are. The same crop last year commanded a much better price. When that money doesn't come through, a family suffers.

Meeting the simple needs for filling a gas tank with fuel, replacing outgrown school clothes, and picking up necessary prescriptions become difficult. The whole consumer cycle shuts down when a family's income disappears. Sound familiar? What can you do?

First, talk with your family. As odd as it seems, sometimes these crises actually draw families together and make them stronger. Share your needs and the adjustments you all may have to make in the next few months. Fortunately, farm families usually have some supplies stored up anyway. Among other things, they often keep fresh, frozen and canned produce on hand.

Second, take advantage of community resources! You have been paying taxes to support many social services. Now is the time to use them. Don't be embarrassed about your need. These benefits provide a financial bridge for you.

Farm families seem at times to be self-sufficient entities. (I can remember my mother taking pride in occasional meals made entirely from our products.) But being self-sufficient isn't the end-all. We do need to be strong enough to ask for help from others when we are in need.

If at some point you are unable to pay your bills, call the companies or banks involved immediately. Explain your situation. Often they are willing to accept a payment of interest only or to reduce the monthly amount to something manageable.

Before you talk to them, write down exactly how much income you are receiving and what your family's monthly expenses equal. Also have in mind a way to compromise — a plan. This will show your creditor that you are trying to be responsible.

Many people who have experienced a drop in income are eligible for medical assistance or food stamps. Don't be afraid to use these for a short time while you are trying to get back on your feet. Medical expenses are the biggest problem for people with limited incomes.

Because of the unanticipated low prices or drop in income, at least for a time, you will have to stretch your dollars. Here are some ways to do that.

• Write down every single thing that you spend money on and now much it costs. By keeping a list, people become aware of the secret drains on their wallets. Make a shopping list and weigh the importance of each item before spending the money.

• Be creative. What meals can you make from the cans of food you have in the cupboard now? Can you create some new outfits or swap clothes with a sibling for variety instead of buying new clothes. Can you sell any items for cash? An old bike? Paperback books? Formals?

• Can any other people in your home make extra money to help out? Involve your children in solving the problem. Can anyone babysit, deliver papers, work part-time on weekends? Perhaps you can rent some of your big equipment to another farmer or use some of it to help do other maintenance/construction jobs — moving large piles of dirt, clearing lots, etc.

It is critical to take good care of yourself.

Of course, you may not have lost your job. You may not have even had a drop in income. You are fortunate. But let me share this one piece of advice with all workers. Financial management experts recommend that we all keep three to six months income in reserve for emergencies — for a broken washing machine or refrigerator, for a failed transmission.

And just like other important things in our lives, that process of saving takes time.

Poultry Banquet Set

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Lancaster County Poultry Association banquet is scheduled for Tuesday, Oct. 29, at 6:30 p.m. in the Palm Court at the Willow Valley Convention Center.

The 1991 Poultry Family Spirit Awards will be announced, and membership matters will be discussed.

Tickets are $18 each, available from the Lancaster Co. Poultry Association, Farm and Home Center, 1382 Arcadia Rd., Lancaster, PA 17601, (717) 394-6851.

many resident cats and kittens. "Miss Pearl is the resident cat," said Ginny. She was a stray that walked up the driveway last February." Ginny and her husband and mother have a weakness for their furry feline friends, taking in all the little critters that seem to gravitate to the farm for sanctuary and loving care.

Grace Owings enjoys the company of her daughter and son-in-law. "Mom keeps an eye on things," said Ginny. Described as part Annie Oakley and part Calamity Jane, Grace seems many years younger than her 75 years.

"Mom rides a three-wheeler. Buzz and I ride four wheelers," Grace said.

Grace likened the 100 head of steers that she watches over to "a bunch of kids."

At Runnymede the fence is checked every day. "If there is a storm during the night, it gets checked during the night. If Mother Nature decides to lay a tree down over the fence, then we have to do a little wood work," explained Ginny. She and her husband both use chain saws to saw up fallen trees. Buzz said that besides the cattle, his favorite part of working on the farm is the woods. During the winter, they mark dead trees, cut and split logs, and "come in cold and tired. Mom serves up her slippery pot pie", which she says is "the standing meal on Sundays."

When the two 'possum belly tractor-trailers" pull up to the loading chute in October, the family will begin their fencing project. "As soon as they go, we'll be stringing fence all winter - eight miles of it," estimated Ginny. They use barbed wire with two strands electrified. And, while Ginny and Buzz bid a sad farewell to their steers that they have come to know by name, Grace said jokingly, "To me, October is Christmas."

From a little girl following in her father's footsteps, to a knowledgeable, well-respected cattlewoman in her own right, Ginny Lambert has proven herself. "You like to know that you can do it. The biggest trouble is the time to do it."

As with any farming endeavor, long hours are a must. Ginny balances her schedule between time on the farm and time at the law office of Hoffman and Comfort where she is entering her 35th year as a secretary. "My boss is very understanding," she said.

"Sometimes I come in and leave skid marks from my tail dragging," joked Ginny. "But, when you get up on the hill and look down over them all, you feel better. The best part is that you love the farm and the cattle. It's in your blood."

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Each time, I wonder the same thing.

"Will this be the last?"

Then a couple of sunny, warm days combine with the cool, damp evenings - and a quick glance out across the lawn says it wasn't the last time at all.

The lawn needs mowed. Again.

Actually, mowing the lawn has become a pleasure once more. Recent rains and nearly-ideal grass-growing conditions have resurrected the stunted greenery, after four months of bake-oven heat and drought.

Gone are the scruffy weeds. Rapidly vanishing are the once-widening patches of dead brown. Laid-to-rest are the mower-blade induced dust storms that dirtied my contact lenses with every pass over the grass - er, weed tops. Even the dusting-bed holes scratched out by Mama, Papa and baby chickens (down to five) are shrinking as aggressive root systems fill formerly grassless voids.

Mother Nature is reclaiming her turf - and green, lush and velvety it is. Tall, too, since our backyard is one of the lowest-lying parts of the farmstead and holds moisture well.

So mowing takes a while, a flawless excuse to flee the desk and soak up a perfect October afternoon. Because the cuttings lay thick and must be removed, I mow the most dense growth first. It dries a bit while I finish the rest and can be blown into "windrows" like hay, cutting the raking and gathering labor.

Some lawn mowers are equipped with baggers for such jobs. We have a bagger. She also runs the mower, the rake, the wheelbarrow.....

While some folks get their bending and stretching exercise at the health spa, we keep our bagger fit with lawn care aerobics. Reeaach out with the rake, strettcchhh those muscles pulling the grass, beennnnddddd and pick it up.

A perfect accompaniment to the aerobics is jogging, behind a wheelbarrow piled with soft fragant clippings, to mulch the roses or the vegetable garden. Bend and stretch, pile and gather, rake and push.

On this recent afternoon, the sun's warmth and a soft breeze make mowing most pleasurable. Puffy white clouds gather in bunches in the blue sky, and slowly drift toward the eastern horizon. Splotches of reddish and golden tints among the fencerows hint at the impending flashy foliage of fall.

The roses struggle to make a drought comeback, pushing out a scattering of late but lovely blossoms of yellow, scarlet and pink. Fat, brown cattail heads wave gently in a circle around the little pond, a few already disintegrating to seed-laden fluff drifting off toward the meadow.

Just a few more passes and the lawn will, at least for a day or two, be level and low, at least passably manicured.

Earlier, I'd thrown out of the mower's way a plastic truck canvas borrowed from the barn to cover my potted tomato plants against overnight frost threats. As the mower sweeps around that corner of the lawn, the whirling blades snatch up a stray length of baler twine fastened to the canvas as a tiedown.

And in a split second the blades suck in a big corner of the blue plastic, stalling the machine before I can even hit the off switch.

"Stupid, stupid, stupid!," taunts a little voice in my head. Not only is the lawn decorated with colorful bits of blue canvas shreds, but all that thick grass is still spread over every inch of turf.

Raking three times the normal square yardage of turf helps disperse my frustration with me.

On an overall scale of equipment incidents we deal with daily, it ranks a mere minor irritation. By day's end, the lawn is clean, the canvas mess untangled and the mower returned intact to the shed.

But, anyone need a slightly used truck canvas? Aeration devices already installed.

Will sell cheap.

"Microwave Magic"

By:
Carol Stark

The holidays are fast approaching us and it is now time to start getting out our recipes for planning those delicious meals. If you'd look now through magazines and begin to gather recipes you might use for your holiday meals, holiday cooking might become much easier. For that turkey meal why not try a low-calorie cranberry sauce? Or a cream sauce for over vegetables such as cauliflower or those little white onions.

CRANBERRY SAUCE

1 cup fresh or thawed frozen cranberries
1 cup chopped apples
¼ cup raisins
½ cup apple juice
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon lemon peel
6 packets sweetener (equal to 12 tsp. sugar).
1 baking dish - 1½ -quart casserole.

Time bake at HIGH for 5 to 7 minutes.

In a casserole dish combine cranberries, apple, raisins, apple juice, cinnamon and lemon peel. Cover loosely with waxed paper. Microwave at full power (HIGH) for 5 to 7 minutes or until skins on cranberries pop, stirring once. Add powdered sweetener and stir until dissolved. Cool. Cover and refrigerate. Each 1 tablespoon serving equals 14 calories and less than 1 mg. sodium.

CREAM SAUCE

4 teaspoons cornstarch
1 teaspoon no salt added chicken or beef bouillon cubes
⅛ teaspoon white pepper
⅛ teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon dried leaf herb
1½ cups skim milk
Glass measuring cup - 4-cup

Time bake at HIGH 4 to 4½ minutes.

Spray top portion of a glass measuring cup to coat with a non-stick coating spray such as PAM. Combine cornstarch, bouillon cubes, white pepper and mustard in measuring cup. Add dried leaf herb. Mix well. Add a little milk and stir until mixture is smooth. Whisk in remaining milk. Microwave at full power (HIGH) for 4 to 4½ minutes until thickened and bubbly, whisking 3 times. Watch carefully so sauce does not boil over toward end of cooking time. Sauce should be thickened and smooth.

Each ⅓ cup serving equals 44 calories with only 45 mg. sodium.

HOLIDAY PARTY BEAN DIP

1 can condensed bean with bacon soup
1 5-oz. jar processed cheese spread with bacon
2 tablespoons brown sugar.
1 tablespoon Worcestershire Sauce
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
2 teaspoons instant minced onion
¼ teaspoon bottled hot pepper sauce
1 cup dairy sour cream
Baking dish - 1 quart casserole

Time bake at (HIGH) 4 to 5 minutes.

Time bake at (LOW) 2 minutes.

In a deep 1 quart casserole, combine soup, cheese, brown sugar, Worcestershire sauce, mustard, onion and hot pepper sauce. Cover. Microwave at full power (HIGH) for 4 to 5 minutes or until cheese melts, stirring twice. Stir ½ cup bean mixture into sour cream. Stir cream mixture into bean mixture in casserole. Cover. Microwave at (Medium Low heat) for 2 minutes or until heated through, stirring once. Serve hot with vegetable dippers and chips.

For the kids to make on a cool evening or after that soccer game.

HOT COCOA

½ cup unsweetened cocoa powder
½ cup sugar
½ cup hot water
7 cups milk
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
6 to 8 large marshmallows

In a casserole dish thoroughly blend together cocoa powder and sugar. Whisk in hot water until blended. Cover and microwave at full power (HIGH) for 3 minutes. Gradually whisk in milk. Cover. Microwave at full power (HIGH) for 13 to 15 minutes. Whisking 3 times. Whisk in vanilla. Ladle cocoa into mugs and top with marshmallows. Arrange mugs in a circle in microwave and use (HIGH) power for another two minutes or until marshmallows are puffed.

The perfect complement to autumn meals is bread made with the abundance of fresh fall produce. So fragrant and delicious, fresh-baked breads are simply impossible to resist. The breads are easy to make. Share them with friends and family to celebrate the special moments of autumn.

PUMPKIN BREAD

Sift together and set aside:
- 4 cups whole wheat pastry flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon cloves
- ½ teaspoon nutmeg
- 4 teaspoons baking soda

In a large mixing bowl, beat together:
- 3 cups mashed pumpkin
- 1 cup plain yogurt
- 1 cup honey
- 1 cup vegetable oil
- 2 large eggs

- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- ½ teaspoon baking soda
- ¾ cup chopped walnuts, optional

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Cream together shortening and sugar. Add egg. Mix until blended. Stir in sourdough and banana. Sift flour, salt, baking soda, and baking powder. Add flour mixture to creamed mixture. Add walnuts. Stir until blended. Pour into greased 9x5-inch loaf pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour and 5 minutes or until toothpick comes out clean. *Sourdough Starter:
- 1 cup milk
- 1 cup flour
- 1 tablespoon dry yeast

Pour milk into bowl or crock, non-metallic. Add flour and yeast, stir. Cover with cheesecloth, letting mixture stand in a warm place for 48 hours until bubbled and sour. Put starter in a covered container with plenty of room for expansion. Store in refrigerator. Each time you use part of it, replenish it by adding equal amounts of milk and flour, letting mixture stand in warm place for 24 hours. Starter should be used once a week, if not used for 2 to 3 weeks, throw out mixture and start from the beginning. Can be frozen, but let stand for at least 24 hours on counter before using so yeast has time to work.

"Honey has always been a staple in our household, even before my husband, Jeremy, became a beekeeper and a commercial honey producer," Diane Velkoff from Elverson writes.

"Now that 'My Honey' has turned into a business, people often ask how we use honey. Our reply, 'In almost everything.'"

The Velkoffs usually substitute honey for sugar in recipes. The general rule for substitution is to cut the sugar by one third (if 1 cup of sugar is required, use ⅔ cup sugar).

The Velkoffs use honey in coffee and tea (hot and iced), on grapefruits, cereals, toast, and muffins, and in homemade soups, spaghetti sauce, and chili.

APPLESAUCE CAKE
- 1 cup applesauce, sweetened or not
- ⅔ cup honey
- ½ cup melted butter
- 1 cup unbleached white flour
- ¾ cup whole wheat flour
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- ½ teaspoon salt, optional
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon powdered cloves
- ½ cup raisins, optional
- ½ cup nuts, optional

In a medium-sized bowl, mix thoroughly the applesauce, honey, and melted butter. Sift into a large bowl the flour, baking soda, salt, cinnamon, and cloves. Add the raisins and nuts. Add the applesauce mixture. Blend well and spoon into a buttered and 9x9-inch floured pan. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven for 40 minutes.

It contained only a few ingredients. It had nuts and the cookie balls were rolled in cinnamon and sugar before they were baked.

ANSWER — Mrs. A. Sherman, Horse Valley, requested a recipe for sawdust pudding. Thanks to Silver Spring, Md. reader, who writes that what some people call sawdust pudding is just plain good old American corn meal mush eaten by us down home folks. Natives of Corsica, Northern Italy and some in France call this dish pudding, Polenta, and it differs from corn meal mush because of different flavoring. It can be eaten cold. Also thanks to a Maryland Montgomery Co. reader for sending a recipe that she adjusted to use purchased products rather than making it from scratch as she said the directions would take a whole newspaper page to write.

Polenta With Tomato Sauce

2 cups water
¼ cup small diced salt pork
1 garlic clove
2 tablespoons olive oil
½ can tomato paste
1 quart can tomatoes with juice
Pinch sugar
Pepper
Salt
½ teaspoon dry oregano
2 leaves fresh basil
1 cup corn meal
1 quart boiling water
1 teaspoon salt

In small saucepan, place diced salt pork in 2 cups water, bring to a boil and boil 5 minutes. Drain the salt pork, discarding the liquid. Slice large garlic clove in half, add salt pork, put in skillet containing 2 tablespoons hot olive oil. Cook mixture until garlic is lightly browned, add tomato paste, fry 2 minutes constantly stirring; add tomatoes with juice, sugar, salt, and pepper to your liking. Barely simmer about an hour. Remove garlic pieces and strain sauce. Put strained sauce into non-reactive saucepan, add oregano and fresh basil, continue cooking sauce on a low simmer until cornmeal is finished. Do not cook dry — add more water if needed.

Stir cornmeal into saucepan with 1 quart boiling water; add 1 teaspoon salt and cook until cornmeal is a thick mush, about 30 minutes. Divide the polenta into four soup bowls and top with tomato sauce.

Sawdust and Woodchip Pudding

Bake 1 box yellow cake mix as directed on package. Set aside and cool completely. Break cake into small pieces (wood chips).

Place ½ to 1 cup pignolia nuts (pine nuts) in ungreased skillet and toast lightly. Remove from skillet and cool. Take one-half of the cold pignolia nuts and finely grind them (sawdust).

Make your favorite chocolate, strawberry, lemon and butterscotch pudding. When made, use a few whole pignolia nuts and stir into pudding.

Layer the bottom of your serving bowl with some warm pudding mixture. Quickly add a layer of wood chips (cake pieces) and top with remaining pudding (may make more layers but top with pudding layer). Cover top with whipped cream or topping. Sprinkle top with some finely ground sawdust (pignolia nuts). If not using whipped topping, make little sawdust pieces (grate pignolia nuts) on each serving.

Cook's Question

ANSWER — Linda Murphy requested a recipe for Popeye's red beans and rice. Thanks to Anne Altman, Pitman, for sending a recipe that her family enjoys.

Red Beans And Rice

40-ounce can red kidney beans
1 clove garlic, chopped
1 medium onion, chopped
1 rib celery, chopped
1 large bay leaf, crushed
1 pound ring bologna

In slow cooker, add first five ingredients. Cook on low for 5 to 6 hours. Take potato masher or big spoon and mash beans a little. Cook another hour. Cut ring bologna in ¼ -inch slices and brown in frying pan. Drain. Add to beans. Cook 1 hour. Serve over rice. Serves 6.

ANSWER — Mrs. A. Sherman, Horse Valley, requested a recipe for chicken and dumplings. She also would like to know where to buy farm animal cookie cutters. Thanks to Arlene Martin, New Holland; Eva Southard, Glen Rock, and to a Silver Spring, Md., reader for sending a recipe and for writing that the animal cookie cutters may be purchased from H.Roth & Son, Importers, 1577 First Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10028 (212) 734-1110.

Stewed Chicken & Dumplings

1 large hen, dressed, cleaned and cut into serving pieces
Water
4-ounces butter
Salt to season

Place ingredients in large enough saucepot and cover chicken with water. Cook on medium heat until chicken is tender. Remove chicken pieces to large platter. Leave enough broth in saucepot to simmer dumplings. If you do not have enough broth, add canned chicken broth or mix instant chicken granules in water to make enough.

Dumplings:
2 eggs
2 cups flour
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cup milk
2 teaspoons baking powder

Sift together flour, salt, and baking powder. Beat eggs lightly, add dry ingredients and beat well. Let stand 15 minutes. Heat chicken broth to just below simmer. Dip a spoon into broth and then use the spoon to drop batter into the hot broth. The batter will expand, so do not crowd the surface of the broth. Do not stir or boil broth. When batter floats to the surface, cover the pot with a tight fitting glass pie plate or lid to retain steam. Do not remove cover until done. When dumplings appear fluffy, remove lid and test by toothpick stuck into middle of a dumpling, remove toothpick and if it is clean, they are done. Repeat cooking of dumplings if more are needed. Serve chicken, dumplings and broth hot.

Mix cream, salt, pepper, and parsley into mashed potatoes. Beat egg until light. Fold into potatoes. Spread potato mixture over meat and vegetables. Brush top with the melted butter. Sprinkle on paprika. Bake 20 minutes or until browned.

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

McVEYTOWN (Mifflin Co.) — "Almost 6½ years ago, we decided to get a dog to work cows. I was so impressed with the intelligence of the pup, I decided to get a female," Derry Leinaweaver said.

The animal she speaks so highly of is the Australian Cattle Dog, a short, sturdy, compact dog whose muscular frame and agility enables it to herd by swiftly nipping the heels of a cows. Because of its size, only 20 inches tall, the Australian cattle dog can come in behind a cow, nip quickly, and retreat, remaining low to avoid a sharp kick.

While nature provided the perfect body and agility for the cattle dog's natural herding instinct, breeding has combined other characteristics, such as intelligence.

"The Australian Cattle Dog, whose ancestors were imported directly from Australia, is a cross between the dingo dog, the blue merle collie, and the dalmation. The dingo is supposed to be the most intelligent canine there is," Derry explained.

By defining intelligence as the ability to learn, Leinaweaver's cattle dogs demonstrate what they have learned, by helping every day to keep the rest of the animals on their 40-cow dairy farm in the right place at the right time.

Derry's 6-year-old "blue" dog, Joe, knows which individual cows are to go where. "My blue dog Joe knows when they're wrong and you can actually see him waiting for the right command to put her where we want her."

Derry said, "These dogs learn by being with you. You have to teach them the basics - come, sit, stay. You want them to be under your control, but they have the natural herding instinct there themselves. Rusty, my "red" dog started working sheep at four months old. It's naturally there. You just have to bring it out in them."

With the instinct to herd, an Australian cattle dog can adapt well to different farming operation needs, whether it is cattle, sheep, ducks, goats, or pigs.

Leinaweaver has four dogs on a 119-acre McVeytown dairy farm she owns with her husband Keith and sons Lee and Johnny. Derry also co-owns a female dog with her mother, Derry Krause. Of her four dogs, two are blue cattle dogs and two are red. "Blue" dogs give the illusion of blue hair when black and tan hairs mix with white ones. This blue mottled variety has black ears, black eye patches, and brown eyes. "Red" dogs, the most dominant variety, have dark red markings over an even speckled base. A careful study of pedigrees will help to determine the color of a litter of pups. Blue dogs bred to blue will never result in red puppies even if there are several reds in the pedigree. Reds, who normally come from a mixed background and can carry blue genes, can produce a mixed litter. But no matter what color they may turn out to be, all pups are born polar bear white, except for the eye patches. They then start to turn color by six weeks of age.

Derry raises a couple of litters each year from more than one female and bristles at the idea of "puppy mills".

"I like to produce good working dogs for people who love their dogs as a family member," Derry stresses.

Derry also realizes that Australian cattle dogs are not for everyone. "They are a one-man dog. They work better for one person and are very loyal. They want to be with you in whatever you're doing. But not everyone should have one. They're not a dog to be penned all day - it makes them mean. They are very protective, which can give them a bad reputation. But once they know a person is supposed to be there, they accept you."

The nature of this breed's temperament can be trained or tempered if owners want to participate in the showring. And many of the Australian cattle dogs have pedigrees that rival the Regtistered Holsteins they work to keep in line.

Derry's red female, whose father was a Landmaster, has "champions back her line like you wouldn't believe!" She's also expecting a litter of puppies in a week, and, Derry hopes, the lineup of champions will go on.

"I co-own a female named Addie with my mother who is down in Mercersburg. One of those pups, Brier Haven Outback Cutter, owned by Cheryl Carey of Mechanicsburg, went to the Australian cattle dog speciality in South Dakota. He won his obedience class and took high in trial in this speciality cattle dog show."

Another pup of Cheryl's, which came from one of Derry's females, qualified in all three runs at the Gaines Regional Obedience Show in York. "They run the dogs (herding) three times and if the dog does something wrong, they lose a point. If enough points are lost, the dog doesn't qualify."

Derry does her part to promote the breed by conducting herding dog clinics such as the one at the Mifflin County Youth Park in Reedsville, held October 6.

When more time allows, Derry hopes to work closer with her own dogs and to someday attend the Specialty.

First place in the junior division went to Kelly Glaser.

For three years, Susan Wise has placed second in Lead Line competition at KILE.

Jennifer Weber placed second in the intermediate division.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — In a classy show combining fashion, modeling, shepherding ability and yearling ewes, 35 contestants put on a four-hour display at Keystone International Livestock Exposition held in Harrisburg last Saturday.

The contest was divided into junior, intermediate, and senior competition. The top three placings in each class went to Kelly Glaser, junior division; Rachael Lawrence, intermediate division; and Gayle Clyde, senior division.

Junior winner Kelly Glaser, 10, entered the Lead Line contest at Kile last year, but did not place. She credits this year's win to a better sheep, a better fit of her own wool outfit, and a smile. She wore wool plaid knickers, a white turtleneck under a maroon sweater, which her grandmother had knitted from wool from Kelly's flock of sheep. She wore gold handmade sheep earrings and gold flats with bows.

Kelly's Corriedale ewe wore a maroon wool scarf that Kelly knit from the same wool as her sweater. Kelly said that she has 17 Corriedales and is responsible for their care. She is in the fourth grade and wants to become a vet.

Second place winner in the junior division, Laura Clabaugh, is the daughter of Robert and Mary Louise Clabaugh of Sabillasville, Md. The family raises Hampshires on their small farm. Laura made the two-piece suit of Pendleton wool with pewter sheep buttons that she modeled. Laura's registered Hampshire ewe is from the Clabaugh's flock. Laura has been raising sheep for four years and has been in 4-H for three. She helps with the fleeces at the Maryland lamb and wool festival.

Meagan Hayes, daughter of Beverly and Daniel Hayes from Red Lion, helped wash, dye, card, and spin the wool for her modeling outfit. The Scottish classic handmade plaid kilt and argyle V-neck vest was from the family's Rambouillet wool. The wool was dyed in blueberry, turquoise, and magenta colors then woven into an intricate Fair Isle design. She wore a white parochial blouse, blue knee highs, a black leather English riding shoes. Meg is a fifth grade student and has 45 Rambouillets, 15 Suffolks and a pony. She plans to become a vet.

Intermediate winner Rachael Lawrence said that she usually places second in the Lead Line competitions she enters. The daughter of Richard and Ruth Lawrence of White Hall, Maryland, showed a Suffolk ewe named Splash.

Rachael enjoys using her sewing and modeling skills in Lead Line competitions. She wore a 100 percent Pendleton wool dropped waist jumper with box pleated skirt. It was complemented by a white long sleeve blouse, gold jewelry, blue shoes and a matching fabric bow tied in her hair and used as a scarf for Splash.

Rachael is active in 4-H and FFA. She intends to do something with animals for the rest of her life.

Jennifer Weber and her Shropshire Lucky placed second in intermediate competition. The 13-year-old daughter of Paul and Deborah Weber is from Hydes, Gayle Clyde, first place in the senior division, credits her Cheviot sheep for her jump from fifth last year to first place this year.

Rachael Lawrence took first place in the intermediate Lead Line competition at KILE.

Poised and fashionable are these contestants in the junior division.

Laura Clabaugh and her Hampshire placed second in the junior division.

Maryland. The 4-H member made her dress from hot pink fabric. The dress featured a jewel neckline, set-in long sleeves with gathered puffs at the shoulder. The dropped waist had a full gathered skirt with an attached sash. The outfit was accented with handmade lace around the neck, earrings, and black leather heels. Her sheep had matching bows trimmed with lace. Rachael plans to be a doctor.

First place senior winner Gayle Clyde is from Slippery Rock. The 17-year-old daughter of Jim and Jean Clyde said that last year she had fifth place in competition at KILE. She said, "I'm sure my sheep made the difference this year."

Gayle showed a Cheviot and wore a fully-lined gray lightweight two-piece business suit that she made herself. The straight jacket was accented with a red scarf, gold chain brooch, and red and gold earrings. She wore red pumps. She plans to attend Slippery Rock University and major in journalism.

For the third year in a row, Susan Wise placed second in competition at KILE. The 17-year-old daughter of Robert and Linda Wise led her prize-winning Suffolk sheep Martini. Susan has taken top place in Lead Line competition at international junior, national, and state competition.

Susan wore a long black 100 percent Pendleton wool coat that she removed to show a winter-white suit of the same wool. The loose fitting double breasted top had extended shoulders and shaped front hemline. The straight semi-fitted skirt was complemented by a vest, off-white blouse, and a black wool hat and leather gloves and shoes. Susan's grandmother, Edith Wise, made the suit.

Susan is the current Knox County Sheep Queen and is a senior at Danville High School. She plans to major in accounting or education at college next year.

In addition to points for modeling, leading, and fashion, contestants received extra points if their outfit was 100 percent wool, if they had made their own outfit, and if they owned the sheep they led.

Judges for the competition were Gary Ricketts, University of Illinois Extension sheep specialist; Joan McCauley, Chester sheep breeder; and Marilyn Engle, home economist.

Third place in the senior division went to Berks County Wool Queen Amy Eshelman. The 17-year-old is the daughter of Susan and Larry Eshelman of Sinking Spring. Although she placed first in Lead Line at her county fair, this was the first time she placed so high in KILE competition.

Amy showed her Oxford sheep named Cinnamon. Amy wore a 100 percent cream colored wool skirt, a navy blue boiled wool jacket with green plaid trim over a cream colored blouse accented with a green paisley Italian scarf. The 10-year, 4-H member will major in animal science next year.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

September has always been considered by me to be the busiest month of the year because there is so much to harvest. But this year it will be October that is busiest as we plan to move later in the month.

I've already put some 50 flower plants from the garden into pots. They are stored on the back porch for the time being and I'm hoping our six black cats and kittens don't break them. They can gingerly walk around them without touching them. However, the three kittens are quiet playful and certainly can damage fragile plants.

Lately I've been hauling baskets of tomatoes to my Amish neighbors. As I grew the plants from seed, they are just now bearing abundantly and I've already canned all that I need. You see, there was a large carry over from the previous year and I do not need any more.

We expect to have a big sweet potato crop if the few plants that I robbed are any indication. With my fingers I probe around the roots and I've been finding very large sweet potatoes. Despite the dry weather the vines have completely covered 18 feet of the garden. The watermelon and white potatoes are now difficult to find.

To add to the busy season, my husband decided that "now" was when he wanted his cataract operation. Our youngest daughter took off from her job and came home. He spent eight hours in the hospital and when the patch was removed from his eye the next day, he was amazed to find that he could see fine without glasses. But, as he has been blind in one eye since birth, it was a long 24 hours for him. Being fed and led around is no fun. I'm sure that in time he would have adjusted and become more independent.

It certainly is a miracle when we consider what modern surgery can accomplish!

What You Should Know About Food Labeling

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Most Americans agree that good health includes a balanced diet and good nutrition. Studies show that it's wise to cut down on saturated fats, sodium, sugar and cholesterol. Including high-fiber cereals, grains, fruits and vegetables in our diets may help us stay healthier and slimmer.

Recently, grocery stores have begun posting nutritional information in produce departments, and at meat and fish counters. These signs, as well as preparation tips, are part of the stepped-up effort by the federal government to educate people about the foods we eat.

In addition, reading the labels helps shoppers make informed decisions about packaged foods. But food labels are often misleading and confusing. Remember those vegetable oils that used to be advertised "No Cholesterol," even though oils by nature are 100% fat? How about those fruit juices that used to be labeled "Fresh" even though they are actually made from concentrate? Closer examination of nutrition labels often turns up unexpected contradictions such as these. So how can we figure out what foods are really good for us?

To respond tto this confusion, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has begun putting pressure on food processors to clarify misleading food labels, including claims of no-cholesterol, reduced calories, very low sodium, low-fat and "light" made by some manufacturers. Last May, for example, FDA ordered three food manufacturers to remove "no cholesterol" from their labels on bottles of high-fat corn oil and canola oil. The FDA found the labels deceptive for two reasons. First, all plant oils are cholesterol-free anyway (dietary cholesterol is mainly found only in meats, some seafood and dairy products). Second, some people may get the impression that "no cholesterol" is the same as "no fat," which is not the case.

Let's consider fats for a moment. Most people should obtain less than 30% of their total calories per day from fat. Here's help in making that calculation. Food labels list fat in grams per serving, and there are nine calories in each gram. If your total calorie intake for the day is 1,800:

30% x 1,800 = 540 calories from fat

540 calories ÷ 9 = 60 grams of fat maximum

To calculate the percentage of calories from fat in an individual serving, simply multiply the number of fat grams by nine (or 10, for an approximate number). The resulting number represents the calories from fat per serving for that product. For example, a vending machine package of crackers with a cheese filling contains 170 calories and six grams of fat. Doesn't sound like a lot, does it? But six grams at 9 calories a gram works out to 54 calories from fat, or over 30% calories from fat for that single item. A piece of low-fat fruit or a non-fat yogurt might be a wiser choice for weight and fat watchers.

FDA is also working on new standardized requirements for food labels, which may include adjectives (such as low, medium or high) to describe levels of nutrients, and a new visual "look." Although FDA is considering eight new designs for the labels, all will list basic nutrition information. Many consumer groups think the nutrition information should include more precise measurements of calories derived from fat, cholesterol and saturated fat, and sodium, as well as list information on other nutrients, such as protein, vitamins and carbohydrates. Congress is backing up the FDA with the Nutritional Labeling and Education Act, which was passed last fall, and requires that the new labels be in place by 1993.

Still on the horizon for food labeling regulators are standardized definitions of descriptions such as low-fat, high-fiber and light. Also favored are more realistic serving sizes for foods. In the past, some manufacturers used serving size to keep calories or sodium levels low, i.e., the bag of chips that lists a "serving" as seven chips or the ice cream carton that lists a serving size as three onces. Eventually, even restaurant menus may be required to provide some form of nutritional information.

These changes in food labeling should help all of us make wiser decisions about the kinds of foods we choose for ourselves and our families. But selecting healthy foods is only one part of the equation. Preparation is another. Steaming, baking, broiling and poaching are the health-conscious ways to cook delicious foods. Unfortunately, sauteing in butter or frying in oil adds unwanted fat and calories to otherwise healthy dishes. And don't forget to supplement a sensible diet with a routine of appropriate exercise to be assured of the best results for building and maintaining good health.

Junior Dairyman Contest Winners Named

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Junior Dairyman Contest at the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy show is reputed to be the "toughest junior contest" in the nation.

But that didn't daunt the Canaseraga Active Achievers of Allegany county, N.Y. In six and a half hard hours of judging, quizes, feed identification, and management classes at the Farm Show Complex here, the New Yorkers scored 876 points to win the 4-H team title for the second straight year and to grab four of the first five individual awards.

Pennsylvania youth weren't about to be shutout in their own backyard. Westmoreland county placed second in the 4-H team contest with 799 points, and Cumberland county third with 703 points.

In the FFA team competition, Pennsylvania dominated with Tulpehocken High School FFA scoring 609 points to take first, Lancaster Mennonite High School FFA finishing second with 578 points and the FFA team from Penns Valley High School, Spring Mills, a close third with 566 points.

Top individual honors and a new $500 scholarship went to Rob Wilson of New York's Canaseraga Active Achievers who earned 453 points. Murel Raub, a 4-H member from Perry county, Pa., won second place and $100 with a 398 point score. 4-H members Emily Hill, Shannon Lacy and Bryan Wilson of the Active Achievers took third, fourth and fifth respectively.

"Turnout is the biggest in five years of the Junior Dairyman Contest," Chairman Carl Brown said, noting that the 87 4-H and FFA contestants hailed from New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Awards this year also set a new high of $1335, he noted.

Sponsors for the 5th annual Junior Dairyman Contest were Pfizer's Animal Health Division and Church & Dwight's Arm and Hammer Products.

Judges included Jeff Tyson of Church and Dwight, Dr. Fernando Luzando, a veterinarian with Pfizer, and Jim Barnett, Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, Superintendent was Walter Wurster, Chester County Extension Agent.

Cadwallader Named New Jersey Dairy Princess

LAMBERTVILLE, NJ — The 1991-92 New Jersey State Dairy Princess is Miss Suzanne Cadwallader of Salem. She is the 17 year old daughter of Nancy & Asa Cadwallader of Waldac Dairy Farm. On the Waldac Farm, they milk 140 Registered Holstein Cows and farm 500 acres of hay, corn, soybeans, and other small grains.

Suzanne has been a member of 4-H and the N.J. Holstein Association for nine years. This year she will be the Dairy 4-H delegate to National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago in December.

Suzanne attends a Quaker boarding school (George School) in Newtown, Pa., where she is a senior. She is a fourth generation Cadwallader to attend George School. She has been on the honor roll all of her first three years of high school and her activities include Discipline Committee, Varsity Field Hockey and Lacrosse, Executive Committee, Dormitory Prefect and Peer Leader.

Suzanne's future plans include attending college to study animal and dairy science. Then she hopes to pursue a career in agricultural research with a focus on dairy cattle genetics.

Waldac Farm was started in 1938 by Suzanne's grandparents, William and Marian Cadwallader. It is now run by her parents and two brothers, Jace and David, with Suzanne's help on weekends and during the summer. The farm is affiliated with N.J. Farm Bureau, N.J. Milk Council, the State and National Holstein Associations, Northeast Dairy Herd Improvement Association and the Atlantic Dairy Milk Cooperative.

Suzanne will represent the New Jersey dairy industry by promoting milk and dairy products at meetings, schools, supermarkets and many special events throughout the State.

Alternate State Princess is Jan Eachus, the 17 year old daughter of Milton and Mergery Eachus of Woodstown. Jan is a senior at Woodstown High School.

Suzanne Cadwallader, Salem, has been crowned the 1991-1992 New Jersey State Dairy Princess.

Only Farm Credit Has Loan Officers Who Were Trained In The Field.

While you were growing up on the farm going to 4-H, FFA, maybe even AG school, do you know what your Farm Credit loan officer was doing?

Same thing.

Not many bankers can say that.

True, they can make loans nine ways to Sunday. But, now your Farm Credit loan officer can, too. Over the last few years our people have gone through extensive training at making every kind of farm loan imaginable. Now a Farm Credit loan officer can give you the lowdown on rates, options and creative financing as well as any city banker can.

And around here, our Farm Credit loan officers have the power of approval that's equal to most bank presidents.

So the next time you need to get a farm loan, think about this for just a moment.

Then let one of our Farm Credit loan officers prove to you what we've been saying all along.

That bankers can't be farmers.

But farmers can be bankers.

ALTERNATIVE FEEDS

A recent national conference on alternative (by-product) feeds for ruminants provided some details on the use of these feeds. This would include corn milling by-products (corn gluten feed and corn gluten meal), brewers and distillers grains, soybeans and soybean products, cottonseeds, animal by-products, and liquid feeds.

There is a tremendous tonnage of these feeds available for use in livestock rations, but there are some specific nutritional and management factors that must be considered.

The upshot of the discussion on feeding value and the economics of alternative feeds was nothing new. That is, with any nontraditional feed source, it is imperative that the feeder know what he is dealing with.

Many alternative feeds are valuable for cattle, but the inherent variation in the feeding value can seriously reduce their economic advantage. For example, one study has shown the variation in distillers' dried grains from a single source was five to six percent for crude protein and five to 13 percent for fat content. Proper diet formulation with that much variation would be an economic and functional disaster without more information. Further, the variation among several sources is even greater.

For Pennsylvania feeders, the NIR van is a local and accurate source of feed analysis. It can be scheduled in any given area by contacting the local county extension office.

Two emerging sources of alternative feeds are whole cottonseeds and liquid feeds. Whole cottonseeds have been used in cattle diets with more regularity in the past decade because of the greater availability created by the resurgence in the use of cotton for clothing and because of the unique value of the cottonseed as a relatively high source of protein, energy, and fiber in cattle diets.

Research studies have shown whole cottonseed can be effectively fed at 20 to 25 percent of the dry matter of the diet. One caution is that they do not flow well and must be augured into bunks or mixing equipment.

Secondly, gossypol is a phenolic compound found in cottonseeds that is toxic to swine and poultry. The conventional wisdom has it that cattle can detoxify more gossypol than they could consume. However, high-producing dairy cattle on high levels of cottonseed meal (45 percent of the diet) have died from gossypol poisoning.

Keeping dietary cottonseed at less than 25 percent of the diet will reduce the "free" gossypol available in unprocessed cottonseeds and thus eliminate the possible toxicity.

An emerging alternative feed source is in liquid diets. These products have been marketed for many years, primarily as urea-based protein supplements in molasses "lick tanks." This created some problems with economics because some producers tried to replace poor nutrition with a lick tank. The result was that cattle ate the molasses for its energy value, but still did not have enough energy available to use some of the urea and it was excreted as ammonia.

The cost of supplementing energy to the cattle was unnecessarily high when it came from the molasses. However, recent developments in suspensory techniques with molasses have shown they are an effective method of supplementing grazing calves and lactating cattle with protein and energy. Protein sources in molasses suspensions now can include feather meal, meat and bone meal, and fish meal.

Added fat, minerals and silage supplementation during storage are other potential benefits of these feeds.

It is time to:

- Palpate the cow herd and sell the open cows. The feed supply this winter will be too short and too expensive to allow "freeloaders."
- While you are pregnancy checking the herd, give them a fall vaccination series of IBR-PI3, killed BVD, Lepto, and haemolphilis.
- Analyze forage to be sure the right amount is being fed, supplements are correct, and the short supply is stretched as far as possible.
- Look for some stalk fields, apple producers who have a pomace by-product available, or extra fall grazing to help stretch winter feed sources.
- Be careful cattle do not have access to growing corn plants or sorghum-sudan hybrids that are frosted because of the danger of prussic acid poisoning.
- Make sure tank heaters are working properly.

Md. Takes Tough Stand Against 'Nesting'

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Wayne A. Cawley, Jr. said he fully supports a tough stand on tobacco "nesting" being taken by the State Tobacco Authority.

The authority has sent warning letters to 196 tobacco growers in Maryland — some of whom, according to buyers, sold nested tobacco at the 1991 tobacco auctions.

"Nesting" in tobacco involves mixing different grades and conditions of leaf in the same basket offered for sale and/or allowing foreign objects to be mixed in with the tobacco. Examples of such foreign objects found this season include rocks, sand, weeds, boards, and hardware scrap.

"Nesting has been against the law for years in Maryland, but this year it has gotten totally out of hand with hundreds of returned sales tickets from packing houses," Cawley said.

"Nesting is cheating, plain and simple. A few extra dollars picked up by a grower who cheats one season could spell the end of the Maryland tobacco market for all growers in future years. I fully support the actions under way by Earl F. Hance, chairman of the State Tobacco Authority, in warning growers who are alleged to have sold nested tobacco," said Cawley.

Accompanying his statement in support of the State Tobacco Authority, Cawley released a copy of the warning notice sent to tobacco sellers.

FARM MANAGEMENT

CUTTING COSTS

Roland P. Freund
Farm Management Agent
Penn State

When the financial situation on the farm gets tight, farm managers have a number of options to consider.

They might try to borrow more money, sell more product, or reduce costs. After a period of drought stress, it would appear that cutting costs could be a very effective way to improve the cash flow. The problem for many managers is to know where to cut to be most effective.

On a farm visit to a very large dairy in another state recently, a group of us was being shown around the new facilities that had cost well in excess of a million dollars. While we were on this inspection tour, the owner was heard to twice tell a hired hand to make sure that when he finished his task he turned the light out in that room. Either this manager already had all the big factors of cost under very tight control so that he could worry about the impact of a light bulb or two, or he was nit-picking in the wrong place.

The same owner could not tell us what the average milk production of his 2,000 plus cows was, nor did he have any record of any individual cow's performance. One poor producing cow in the herd was probably losing the business as much money in a month as those few light bulbs would in 10 years!

Managers need to follow a game-plan if they wish to set up an effective cost-cutting program. Some suggestions for this process include:

• Know what's happening. Take time to manage. Keep track of performance of cows, orchard blocks, fields, and enterprises. In the good old days, the farmer could see which mule didn't pull its weight. Today we need records to show us these things. Production and growth records, soil testing all fields systematically, and forage testing all cuts of feed are basic necessities for cost control. In addition to cash expenses, feed use by different animal groups must be traced if we are going to determine that group's contribution to farm profits.

Once we have this kind of information, we can work out where we are dumping money down "rat holes." Get the big picture as simply and accurately as possible. It should not be necessary to track every last gallon of gas, hour of labor, or pint of spray to identify major "rat holes."

• Start with the big holes. Are there rented farms that produce less value than they cost? Is there an enterprise that should be eliminated? Which cow(s) are worth more as hamburger than milk income above feed costs? Identify them and get rid of them to plug the holes.

In livestock operations, feed, labor (including family living allowances), and interest are often the major cost items. If we examine each of these carefully, we can probably see if and why they are excessive, and then devise ways to bring them into line.

For example, poor forage quality means excessive protein and grain purchases. Develop a crop management plan to get the quality, or take half of the grain purchase money and buy quality forage.

• Examine labor efficiency. Sometimes antiquated facilities cost us more in lost production and labor than the bank payments to finance a new unit. If the operation cannot justify basic efficient facilities, then it might be time to consider shutting down the enterprise.

• Attention to detail. Cost-cutting management involves almost every activity on the farm. Spreading manure on low-fertility fields and then reducing fertilizer purchases can save thousands. Scouting fields and only applying pesticides where problems warrant it is basic. Timing is everything — particularly when it comes to sow management for more pigs weaned or producing, harvesting, or grazing forages.

• Reduce fixed costs. Many operations are crippled by their level of lease and debt repayment obligations. Some relief might be gained by refinancing to lock in today's low interest rates. But when debts have to be refinanced again and again, to pay for a drought or the equivalent of a dead horse, then no progress is made in paying principle.

Under such conditions it becomes necessary to sell off capital assets such as land and machinery to reduce the fixed costs to a level which the operation can carry.

• Use available tools. In this process, it is necessary to a lot of business analysis. Penn State Extension has recently added Finanx to its arsenal of Finpack programs. This enables us to do an enterprise analysis anywhere that there are some basic financial and production records. It is an excellent tool to identify the big "rat holes."

Contact your county office and ask your farm management agent to run your numbers through the Finanx program. This should give you a good start with your cost cutting efforts.

Md. Certifies First Organic Retailer

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Wayne A. Cawley, Jr. announced that the state has certified its first organic retailer — B. Gordon's Market at 11550 Rockville Pike, Rockville, Md.

Located just north of White Flint Mall at the intersection of Nicholson Lane and Rockville Pike, B. Gordon's is a full-service grocery store.

Maryland regulations require that Maryland Certified Organic produce be sold only by the grower or a certified retailer. This is to ensure that the produce is handled properly from the field to the consumer's hands. The retailer, like the farmer, has made a commitment to insure that non-organic products are kept separate.

Current Maryland regulations deal only with produce, although in future years, expansion into other categories is projected.

B. Gordon's carries an extensive selection of fresh produce overwhelmingly organic, with a few non-organic selections. They also carry dry goods, fresh meat, and fish.

"We hope consumers will become more familiar to our attractive 'MDA Certified Organic' logo as more Maryland produce becomes available. We appreciate retailers' efforts who are helping to get this new program up and going," Cawley said.

Retailers interested in the Maryland program may contact Suzie Harrison at (301) 841-5770.

Several Win Big In KILE Swine Competition

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The vice president of Maryland's FFA Association was named premier exhibitor in Duroc swine competition during the Keystone International Livestock Exhibition (KILE) in the Pennsylvania State Farm Show Complex last week.

Eighteen-year-old Howard Meredith of Wye Mills on Maryland's eastern shore took home a handful of ribbons during his second year at KILE.

Meredith showed the grand champion Duroc gilt, from the April gilt class, and was named premier Duroc exhibitor.

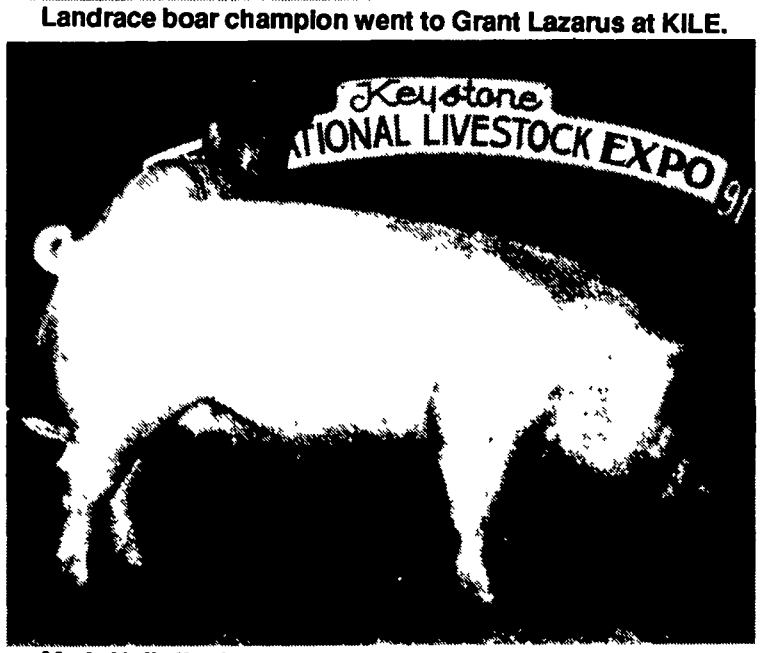
Landrace boar champion went to Grant Lazarus at KILE.



Mark Hall displays the champion Yorkshire gilt at KILE last week.

Allen Cornbower, New Freedom, Pa. has the grand champion Berkshire boar at KILE.

Meredith and his parents, Howard and Luanne Meredith, operate a 200-acre corn, wheat, soybean, and hog farm in Queen Anne's County, Md.

"The KILE show is great, the best show ring on the circuit, and we're getting out more now that we've improved our herd,' Meredith said.

Meredith also showed at the Maryland State Fair, the Montgomery County, Md. Fair, the Queen Anne's County Fair, the Talbot County Fair, and the Cecil County Fair. Last year, he exhibited the grand champion Duroc female at KILE.

David Holloway, of Glen Rock, Pa., showed the reserve champion gilt and the reserve champion boar. The champion boar (LAI SSG First CH, 40-1, sire SSG Fist Choice, dam DPF9 MS Chest) belonged to Lawrence Arnold, of Womelsdorf.

Hampshire swine owned by Jack and Tina Clark of Hustontown captured several awards. Three Hampshires contributed to the winning streak — JCP1 Pedro (sire KKH9 Pedro, dam LFS9 Jane) captured grand champion boar on the first showing. CP 21-2 (sire WGN9 TORO, dam Miss M) was the reserve champion boar. JCP 1 Jane 4-6 (sire KKH9 Pedro, dam LFS9 Jane) won grand champion gilt.

The Clarks operate a pig farm in Hustontown, selling breeding stock and feeder pigs.

The feature breed of KILE, the Yorkshire Show, had the most number of entries. The grand championship went to Farrer Stock Farms, Royal Center, Ind., with the March boar, FARI TITAN (sire ARKO Citation, dam FAR9 Dutchers). Grand champion gilt honors went to a January gilt, CBHI Tillie (sire BV9 AJ, dam CBH9 Tillie).

Grand champion Berkshire gilt went to Russel and Arlie Cornbower, New Freedom, with a February boar, PBF Bam Bam (sire PBF Bam Bam, dam Cor 7 Power Model 13-2). Grand champion Berkshire gilt went to George and Gary Winebark, Rossiter, for a March gilt, GNWI Classic Stuf (sire KMSO Classic, dam GNWO Miss Wright Expander).

Champion Chester White boar went to a March boar exhibited by Rodger Bankert, Hanover, for I LPS ADMIRAL (sire LPSO Admiral, dam CBO Ms. Special). Champion Chester White gilt was awarded to James T. Parlett and Sons for the March gilt, TM Dame P (sire Plainman, dam TM Dame).

Grand champion Landrace boar was exhibited by Grant Lazarus, Germansville, a February boar. Lazarus also won the gilt class with his February gilt.

Poland China grand champion boar, a March boar, was awarded to Leland Mapes and family, Unionville Center, Ohio. Mapes won with LOMIS Mr. High Voltage (sire MMSOS High Voltage, dam LOM7S Miss Thunder). George and Gary Winebark won champion gilt with a March gilt, GGWI S Miss Right (sire RTS9 S Balsmid, dam CAB9 S).

Brian Lake picked up champion Spotted Swine boar honors with his March boar, BLL Carp (sire SSF Carp, dam BLL Jewel). A February gilt was grand champion Spotted gilt, TMI Jenny (sire FSFO Payroll, dam TMO Jenny), exhibited by James Parlett and sons.

There were 304 gilts and 148 boars paraded at the KILE Swine Show.

Judge for the Yorkshire-class feature show was Henry Holloway, Darlington, Md., who manages 75 head of Hampshires and Yorkshires. This was the first time

Business News

Local Organic Fertilizer Company Changes Hands

BAINBRIDGE (Lancaster Co.) — Rufus S. Miller, president of The Fertrell Company, has sold the controlling interest to the employees and stockholders.

Rufus Miller spent 40 years developing The Fertrell Company and its many products. He put his philosophy on farming practices to work on a run-down farm in 1950. Using organic plant food, he restored the productivity of this farm, which became a Show and Tell farm. Dealers and distributors from many states came to view the ongoing demonstration.

In 1973, Rufus Miller became president and chief executive officer of The Fertrell Company. Realizing the need for additional nutrition in animal feeds, he began blending vitamin and mineral supplements, the response was very good.

On September 27, 1991, Rufus Miller sold his interest to the employees and shareholders. David Mattocks will assume the duties of president and sales manager, Dennis Nygaard, vice president and financial officer, and W. Reuben Gantz, secretary and production manager.

The products offered will be virtually the same, with some additions.

David Mattocks began with FERTRELL in 1980 as area salesman and moved to vice president, sales manager in 1983. He currently covers sales outlets in 28 states and two providences in Canada. This year he has opened negotiations in Taiwan and Puerto Rico for blended fertilizers.

Dennis Nygaard began with The Fertrell Company in 1989 and has been responsible for internal operations. His expertise in computers and finance has strengthened the overall position in the industry.

W. Reuben Gantz began with The Fertrell Company in 1960 and has been responsible for production and plant maintenance. Reuben also plays a large role in inventory control. His years of involvement qualify him to determine product components that work well for plant foods. Perhaps the most important aspect of any manufacturing facility is the product quality. Reuben's concern for customer satisfaction will continue as The Fertrell Company moves ahead.

Gem is a 1990 graduate of Youngstown State University, (Ohio), with a bachelor's degree in accounting. Prior to working for Farm Credit, he was employed in the New Castle office of Hill, Barth and King, an accounting firm.

Penn West Farm Credit ACA provide loans and financial services to farmer members in western Pennsylvania and the northern panhandle of West Virginia. The association is part of the Farm Credit Bank of Baltimore and the Farm Credit System.

New Drills Feature In-Line Box Configurations

MOLINE. Ill. — John Deere has announced two new 455-Series folding grain drills for the '92 product year.

Available in a 25-foot and 30-foot model, the new drills feature in-line box configurations, an innovative adjustable, hydraulic, constant down-pressure system, an independent opener lift system, offset double-disk openers, a choice of several depth-gauging press wheels, and a 15-foot 2-inch transport width.

The 455-Series drills in-line box configurations make loading seed and fertilizer fast and easy. The in-line design also eliminates tire tracks for a uniform look to the field following drilling.

The 25-foot model consists of two 12-1/2-foot boxes and the 30-foot unit combines three 10-foot boxes. Both models are available with 6-, 7-1/2-, and 10-inch opener spacing. Each model provides a minimum of 15 degrees of wing flexibility for following ground contours and terraces.

A single adjustable down-pressure valve uses the tractor's SCV and hydraulics to apply constant force on the double-disk openers. This provides consistent opener penetration as the openers flex up or down across varying terrain. The valve permits the operator to adjust down-pressure from 500 - 1500 psi to match a range of soft-to-hard soil conditions. A pressure gauge is included in the system so the operator can conveniently adjust the pressure to the correct setting for conditions.

Each opener also has an adjustable spring for fine-tuning down-pressure, such as for openers that run in wheel tracks. These openers may need more penetration force when the wheels compact the soil.

The opener raise-and-lower hydraulic circuit is independent of the frame raise-and-lower circuit on the 455-Series drills. A small-diameter cylinder is used in the opener circuit because it lifts and lowers only the openers rather than the frame of the drill. The size of the cylinder enables it to lift and lower the openers rapidly for quick turns. Because the frame does not have to raise during a turn, the weight of the drill is distributed among six wheels rather than four, which helps reduce soil compaction.

Both drills frature double-disk openers with a 1/4-in. offset. The offset design provides a narrow initial furrow that requires less penetration force to create. The leading blade edge also cuts through trash for effective performance in various residue conditions.

The depth-gauging press wheels for these drills provide consistent depth control and seed-to-soil contact. Each press wheel has a convenient handle for quickly adjusting opener depth from 0 - 3-1/2 inches in 12 incremental settings all without tools. The adjustment is similar in design to the gauge-wheel adjustment on John Deere MaxEmerge two planters. The operator simply pulls out the spring-loaded adjustment handle and repositions it in the desired incremental setting.

Optional press wheels are available in five size/configuration combinations to match operator preference and varying soil requirements.

Both the 25-foot and 30-foot model fold hydraulically into a narrow 15-foot 2-inch transport width. Clearance under the openers is 15 inches and tread width is only 90 inches.

A 2.8-bushel/foot grain box is standard on 455-Series drills. An optional 3.4-bushel/foot combination grain/fertilizer box is available. The combination box features a moveable partition which offers the operator the flexibility of three box configurations in one. The partition can be positioned to accomodate 100 percent, 60 percent, or 40 percent grain.

An optional grain agitator prevents grain from bridging and thus helps ensure a smooth, even flow of grain into the feed cups. Other options include single or dual wing wheels, single or dual marders, a half-speed drive kit to expand the capability of the meter to handle low-volume crops like canola, and a grass seeder.

Shipments of the 455-Series folding grain drills are scheduled to begin early next year.

The John Deere 25-foot and 30-foot 455-Series folding grain drills feature in-line box configurations that permit convenient loading of seed and fertilizer. The adjustable down-pressure system applies constant force on the openers for consistent penetration in varying soil conditions.

Pioneer Introduces 1992 Seed Products

WEST DES MOINES, Iowa — Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., has added a total of 10 new seed products to its lineup of corn, soybean, sorghum, and alfalfa seed products for growers in Eastern and Northeastern areas.

Mark Iwig, director of North America corn breeding for Pioneer, says new corn hybrids now being introduced are in part the result of a major expansion in the company's research and development program in the late 1970s and early 1980s.

"With our new corn hybrids, Pioneer's corn hybrid lineup from top to bottom has never been stronger," said Iwig. "Today, Pioneer offers leader packages of corn hybrids specifically developed to address local environmental conditions. The opening of eight new research locations in the past decade, giving us a total of 26 corn research stations across North American corn growing areas, enables us to select specific hybrids for local conditions. The company has research stations located in New Holland and Quarryville, Pa.

"Today, the result is more outstanding hybrids to choose from to select planting packages that will help growers spread risk from various environmental, disease, and insect stresses," Iwig said.

New Corn Hybrids

Pioneer has five new yellow dent corn hybrids adapted to the East and Northeast.

"Extremely high yielding over wide range of environments," is how Terry Williams, Pioneer corn breeder at New Holland, Pennsylvania, described new 3394, a 111 comparative relative maturity (CRM) corn hybrid. "It's extremely fast out of the ground, extremely good stress tolerance with very good roots, and on top of all this is a beautiful hybrid to watch grow all season long."

Probably the most exciting new Pioneer hybrid for eastern corn growers is 3245. This 115 CRM hybrid has "very high yield-record setting potential, extremely good grain appearance, very high grain protein," Williams said. "It averaged more than 280 bushels in Rutger's high yield experiment in 1990. It's an attractive hybrid to grow."

Because of its excellent grain quality, the hardness of grain starch, and its high test weight, a number of food processors have expressed an interest in this hybrid.

New 3645 is a high yielding hybrid for New York and the early sections of the East. On a rising scale of 1 to 9, Pioneer plant breeders and agronomists rated this 102 CRM hybrid a 9 for yield for maturity and a 7 for stalk height. "It's a great hybrid for silage for the farmer who wants high tonnage," Williams said. "This hybrid was designed just for the silage producer."

Another early hybrid among the new Pioneer offerings is 3845. This 91 CRM hybrid can be grown as far north as corn is produced in the Northeast. "It comes up fast and shows its yield," Williams said. It has an extended grain fill period and blacklayers later than other hybrids of this maturity, but dries down very fast, producing yields similar to later maturing hybrids. And while it does well at higher planting rates, it has good ear flex when planted at lower rates.

"For an early hybrid, it can produce very big ears," Williams said.

Top end yield, very good grain quality, and outstanding stalks are just a few of the traits that Williams said make new 3293 a "hybrid any grain farmer would be proud to grow." This 114 CRM hybrid is similar to 3241, but with more top-end yield potential. It has strong early growth, superior staygreen, and superb drought tolerance.

New Soybeans

Three new Pioneer soybean varieties are being sold for planting next spring. These include 9392, a late group III; 9521, an early group V; and 9551, a mid-group V.

New 9392 has an impressive yield history in the Pioneer research program. It has very good brown stem rot and Phytophthora tolerance and very high yield potential, said Joe Mayer, Pioneer field sales agronomist at Petersburg, Pa. It has fast emergence, even in cooler soils, making it a good choice for minimum or no-till planting.

"It is widely adapted across a variety of soils and conditions," he said. "With its good standability, it will do well just about anywhere growers want a late group III maturity soybean variety."

With multirace resistance to Phytophthora root rot and resistance to Races 3 and 4 soybean cyst nematode, new 9521 has the ability to produce top yields on problem soils. It is an exceptionally high yielding variety for its maturity, even on soils where cyst nematode and Phytophthora are not present.

"Its canopy enables 9521 to perform well in both wide and narrow rows, and it should do very well when planted no-till or behind wheat as a double crop," said Ed Lazowski, Pioneer field sales agronomy manager at Mount Joy, Pa.

Pioneer 9551 is resistant to races 3 and 4 of the soybean cyst nematode. "It also has good tolerance to sudden death syndrome, stem canker, and Frogeye leafspot," Lazowski said. It is average in height and canopy width.

"This stature may be shorter than desired on the very heavy clay soils, but 9551 has performed very well in these conditions too. This variety can be planted in all row widths and as a double-crop soybean behind wheat," he said.

Forage Sorghum Hybrid

New 840F is a dual purpose hybrid that produces heavy yields of low tannin white grain. With an RM rating of 75, it's a medium maturity hybrid with leafy stalks that grow 6-7 ft. tall, and generally produces a high grain to stover ratio.

"Not only is silage high in energy, but it is also more palatable because of the low tannin grain content," said Mark Hood, Pioneer grain sorghum breeder at Clarkdale, Ark.

Alfalfa Variety

"High yield potential is the main feature of new 5333, a multifoliate variety that is suited to soils that are less than well drained," said Ed Poynor, Pioneer alfalfa breeder at Quarryville, Pa. Other features include high resistance to bacterial wilt, Fusarium wilt, anthracnose, Phytophthora root rot, and moderate resistance to verticillium wilt.

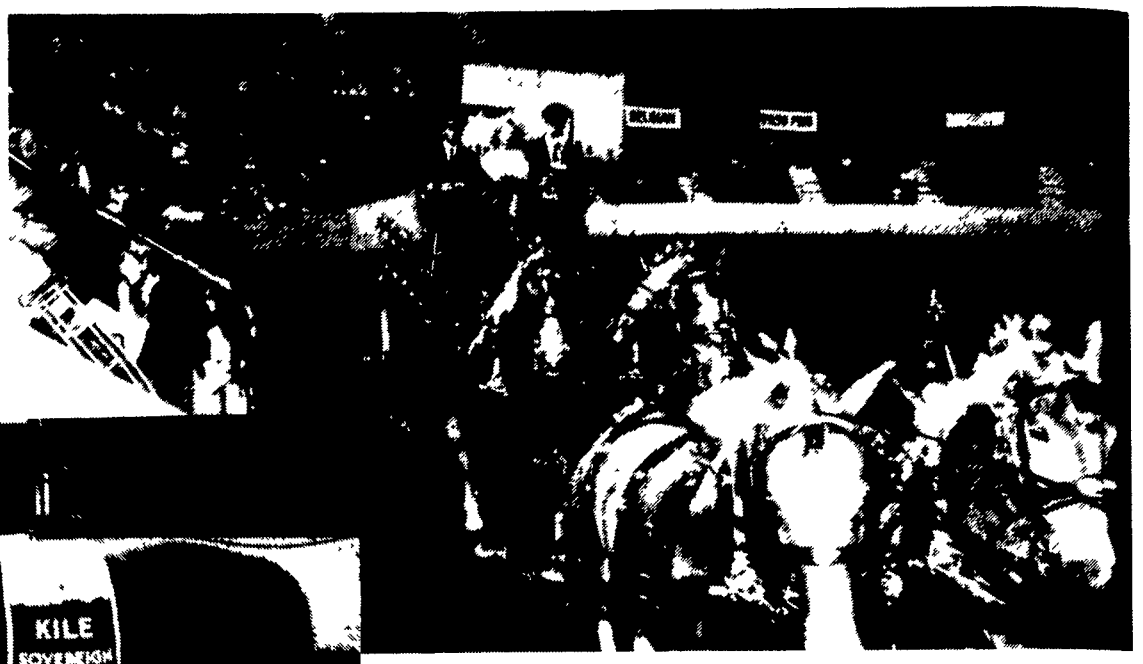
Horse Events Showcased At KILE



Four and six-horse hitches showed their paces in the large arena Saturday night. After viewing all twelve hitches, Windmill Acres Farm from Newton, North Carolina was named the winner.

In the challenge of the breeds contest, Shirley Craig of Nottingham and her Arabian horse, Imperial Mandan, took home top honors.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Hundreds of horse enthusiasts gathered to show and compete in a variety of events that made up the Horse Division of the 35th Annual Keystone International Livestock Exposition (KILE), held in the State Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg from October 3 - 7. KILE is one of the premier indoor livestock shows on the North American Continent.

Both draft (heavy) and riding (light) horses were represented in the division. Draft breeds included Belgian, Clydesdale, Percheron, and Shire. Riding breeds included Appaloosa, Arabian, Paint, Paso Fino, and Quarter Horse.

Horses were presented in both halter classes, where they are judged on their qualities while standing or walking, and performance or hitch classes. In the performance classes, light horses are shown at gait while under rider, and for the hitch classes, draft horses are shown while pulling carts or wagons.

Two Saturday evening events added a special excitement to the Horse Division at KILE.

The Glatfelter Challenge of the Breeds involved six invited horses and their riders judged on their performance in six events, including English Pleasure, Hunter Hack, Pleasure Driving, Western Pleasure, Western Riding, and an exciting Barrel Race. Owner/Rider Shirley Craig of Nottingham and her Arabian, Imperial Mandan, traded high placings with Susan Vohn of Grantville and her Quarter Horse "Watch Me Winsome" throughout the competition before breaking the tie with a thrilling low time of 20.47 in the Barrel Race.

Interspersed with the Glatfelter Challenge of the Breeds were Draft Four and Six Horse Hitch events. The 35th KILE saw a record number of twelve six horse hitches entered, including the top five hitches in the nation. KILE is a qualifying show in the North American Six Horse Hitch Classic Series, where contestants earn points at this and other shows throughout the nation to win an overall award. The six horse hitch competition was presented by the Pennsylvania Percheron Association and sponsored by Jim Mays and family, owners of the Mayfield Golf Club in Clarion.

After viewing all twelve gleaming and jingling six horse hitches, Judge Craig Grange of Delmar, Iowa awarded first place to the Number 36 hitch of Windmill Acres Farm in Newton, North Carolina.

Along with the rest of KILE, the Horse Division events were a great success. Both entrants and spectators look forward to next year's exposition.

Producer Enrolls In Angus Herd Records Program

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — Ralph Zeager, Elizabethtown, Pennsylvania, has recently been enrolled in the Angus Herd Improvement Records program of the American Angus Association, reported Richard L. "Dick" Spader, executive vice-president of the national breed registry organization.

Angus Herd Improvement Records (AHIR) is a comprehensive evaluation program used by registered Angus breeders to help them keep records of reproduction and growth rate on individual animals. Each year, hundreds of Angus breeders use AHIR records to produce more profitable, efficient Angus seedstock.

By weighing calves at 205 days of age and again at a year of age, breeders not only identify the cattle that grow the fastest and most efficiently, they also identify cows that regularly produce above average calves, and bulls that sire outstanding calves.

The American Angus Association in 1957 was the first beef breed organization to offer its members a production records program, accordging to the organization. Since that date, the AHIR program has grown to the point that breeders report more than 300,000 birth, weaning, and yearling weights each year.

Plan To Get Beef To Japan Widens

TOWSON, Md. — Five Baltimore County farmers are conducting a feed experiment that they hope will develop into exports of beef to Japan.

County Executive Roger Hayden met with the farmers, on the farm of Richard Price, Phoenix, Md., to thank them for their participation.

The Baltimore County Economic Development Commission (EDC) worked with J.W. Trueth & Son, a meat packing plant in Oella, Md., on a plan to get Baltimore County beef into the international market.

Trueth, which slaughters about 20,000 head of cattle annually, serves a prime restaurant trade in Baltimore, Philadelphia, and New York City. The packer would like a prime meat that could be exported to the Japanese.

With the aid of Scott Barao, a University of Maryland agriculturalist, a feeding program was developed using Tend-R-Leen, a high protein feed from Southern States Cooperative.

Lloyd Reynolds, Hayden's Ag-Liaison between county government and farmers, spearheaded the joint effort that included Joe DiCara, EDC; county extension agent Dick Curran; and members of Southern States' feed division.

The Baltimore County farmers used Hereford-Angus crosses, Herefords, Angus, and Holsteins. Donald Cole provided four head; and Price (a member of the Southern States board of directors), Louis Ensor, George Strohmer, and George Whitlock, two each.

"Agriculture represents one-third of the gross national product of Baltimore County, and we need to pay attention to such a vital interest," said Hayden.

"This may seem like a small program to some, but it's a great step forward for a metropolitan county like Baltimore, which is only 20 minutes from the Inner Harbor," said Lloyd Reynolds.

AIR QUALITY AND POULTRY PERFORMANCE

William D. Weaver, Jr.
Department of Poultry Science

Poor air quality in the poultry house, especially during colder months, is normally associated with elevated levels of ammonia.

Researchers have well documented the fact that ammonia levels above 25 parts per million (ppm) significantly increase feed-to-gain ratios and reduce body weights. Research under controlled conditions has also shown that body weight can be reduced .25 pound and feed conversion increased 4 percent (8 points) at market age for broilers when ammonia levels are maintained at 50 vs. 0 ppm. This can amount to approximately 250 pounds of live weight and 320 pounds of feed, or as much as $75 for each 1,000 broilers produced.

It has been our experience that producers tend to underventilate during the colder months in an attempt to conserve fuel. However, records from many individuals show that those who ventilate more and consequently burn more fuel make more money per bird than growers that *over*conserve on fuel and underventilate their buildings.

Furthermore, investigators have shown that birds vaccinated with Newcastle disease virus and exposed to either 20 or 50 ppm of ammonia have significantly higher infection rates than birds vaccinated and placed in an ammonia-free environment. Ammonia at levels of 40 ppm, and in some cases as low as 10 ppm, have been shown to significantly alter and damage the tracheal mucous membranes. Birds exposed to these levels of ammonia had a greater number of e. coli organisms in their lungs than those not exposed to this gas.

Other research shows that air sac condemnations are over 4 percent higher when ammonia is maintained at 50 ppm when compared with an environment void of this gas. Certainly ammonia has been demonstrated to be a significant stressor, especially in combination with other respiratory challenges, and must be maintained at levels below 25 ppm during brooding and below 50 ppm after 28 days of age in order to ensure desired performance.

While conducting an ammonia level survey in a number of broiler houses several years ago, we recorded levels in some cases well above 100 ppm. When discussing this problem with colleagues in other areas of the country, they reported making readings of well over 200 ppm.

Ammonia levels in this range will cause significant growth depression and respiratory complications. When litter pH is above 7.0, only heat, moisture, and nitrogen supplied by uric acid are needed to produce ammonia in the broiler house (i.e., water + uric acid + heat = ammonia).

Unfortunately, under current management practices, heat (recommended brooding and growing temperatures) and uric acid (bird excreta) cannot be significantly changed or reduced. Therefore, moisture must be controlled to reduce the production of ammonia. This must be done through proper waterer management (nipple drinkers have significantly aided this process) and with mechanical ventilation.

My next article will discuss the proper operation of the negative pressure ventilation system to control moisture and consequently ammonia during the winter months.

September has always been considered by me to be the busiest month of the year because there is so much to harvest. But this year it will be October that is busiest as we plan to move later in the month.

I've already put some 50 flower plants from the garden into pots. They are stored on the back porch for the time being and I'm hoping our six black cats and kittens don't break them. They can gingerly walk around them without touching them. However, the three kittens are quiet playful and certainly can damage fragile plants.

Lately I've been hauling baskets of tomatoes to my Amish neighbors. As I grew the plants from seed, they are just now bearing abundantly and I've already canned all that I need. You see, there was a large carry over from the previous year and I do not need any more.

We expect to have a big sweet potato crop if the few plants that I robbed are any indication. With my fingers I probe around the roots and I've been finding very large sweet potatoes. Despite the dry weather the vines have completely covered 18 feet of the garden. The watermelon and white potatoes are now difficult to find.

To add to the busy season, my husband decided that "now" was when he wanted his cataract operation. Our youngest daughter took off from her job and came home. He spent eight hours in the hospital and when the patch was removed from his eye the next day, he was amazed to find that he could see fine without glasses. But, as he has been blind in one eye since birth, it was a long 24 hours for him. Being fed and led around is no fun. I'm sure that in time he would have adjusted and become more independent.

It certainly is a miracle when we consider what modern surgery can accomplish!

PFU To Washington

HARRISGURG (Dauphin Co.) — Congress must make unfinished agricultural issues a priority during the closing days of the 1991 session, according to more than 150 family farmers from throughout the country who were in Washington September 21-24.

Members of Pennsylvania Farmers Union (PFU) and officers participated in the legislative effort sponsored by the National Farmers Union.

Improving federal dairy policies topped the list of concerns expressed by the delegation. Congress is now considering legislation which would implement a program to boost the prices paid to dairy farmers by keeping supplies in line with demand.

Farmers Union members support a supply management approach known as "two-tier" under which farmers could receive a fair price for their base level production and a reduced price for any excess production. But the group told Congressional leaders that the policy must enable farmers to be able to receive cost of production plus a reasonable profit.

The farmers also blasted the Bush Administration for driving a wedge between dairy farmers, producers of other commodities, and consumers.

"The Administration has stated that a supply-management dairy program would drive up retail prices, impact federal nutrition programs, and harm beef producers. These arguments are simply untrue," said Allen Deiter, president of the PFU.

Second on the lobbying agenda was a call for disaster assistance for producers whose crops were lost to weather disasters this year. Pennsylvania has been severely affected by the drought, and some crops were a total loss. The group said a well-funded disaster program and commitment by Congress to improve the Federal Crop Insurance Program are critical to the areas suffering crop losses.

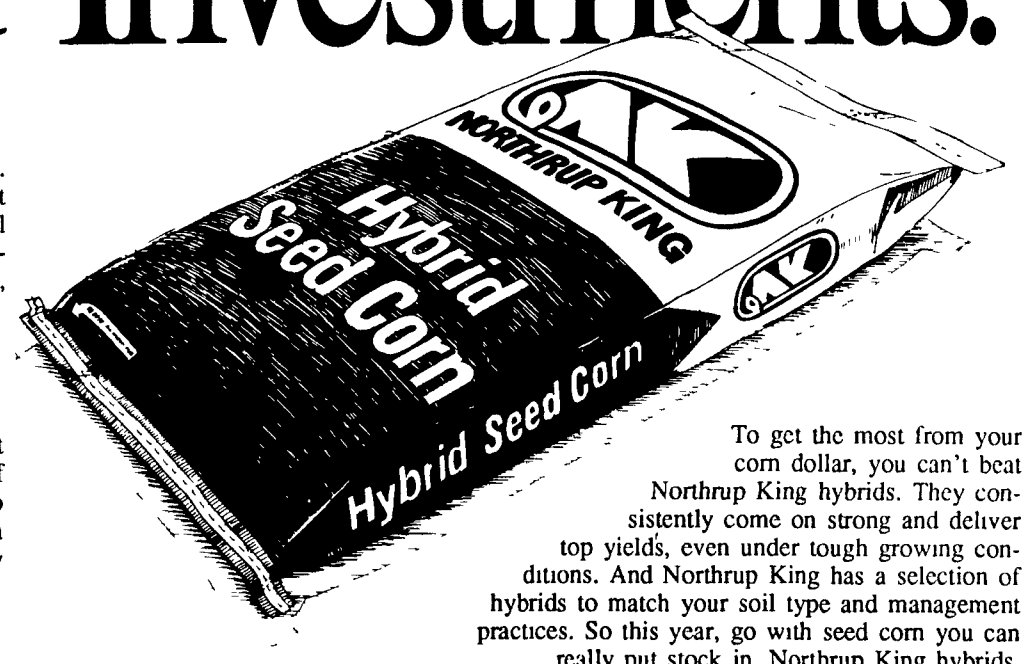
Other issues discussed and supported by Farmers Union members included International Trade (North American Free Trade Agreement and GATT negotiations), wetland regulations, marketing and processing sectors of agriculture, and adequate funding levels for the Green Thumb older workers' program.

"I really want to commend the people who took the time to come to Washington this week," said National Farmers Union President Leland Swenson. "When members of Congress consider farm policies, there are no better people for them to hear from than real, working farmers."

High Yield Investments.

N8727 RM: 118-122 As a full season hybrid, this variety is a "must plant". An outstanding yielder, it also has superior standability and is excellent for full season grain or silage. N8727 features a flex ear that adapts well to variable densities, plus very good ear retention and husk cover. Outstanding test weight, too. If you're going all out for full season yields, this hybrid belongs on the top of your list. Not tolerant to virus complex. This hybrid had highest yield in a 90-91 P.S.U. trails at 191 bu/acre.

N6330 RM: 108-112. If you're looking for a very high yielding hybrid that performs well as medium-to-low populations, put this one on the top of your list. This corn has a superior performance records on coarse to medium textured soils and exceptional drought stress tolerance. it has a flex ear that adapts well to lower populations. Recommended for timely harvest.



To get the most from your corn dollar, you can't beat Northrup King hybrids. They consistently come on strong and deliver top yields, even under tough growing conditions. And Northrup King has a selection of hybrids to match your soil type and management practices. So this year, go with seed corn you can really put stock in. Northrup King hybrids.

Know How To Handle Livestock

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — 'Tis the season for county fairs, 4-H events, and livestock shows of all kinds. This means farm animals will be handled and transported more than usual.

"There are correct and incorrect ways to handle livestock when transporting them, or when immobilizing them so you can work with them," said Dr. John Comerford, assistant professor of dairy and animal science in Penn State's College of Agriculture.

"When large animals are handled with knowledge and skill, they cooperate. There are many incidents where animals injure themselves or the people working with them. This is the result of poor facility design or people using poor judgement — it's not the animals' fault."

When handling livestock, it's important to understand how they perceive the world around them and react to certain stimuli.

Every animal has an area around it called the flight zone. Once an intruder — predator, human, or even motor vehicle — enters the flight zone, the animal tries to escape.

"As long as they don't see anything entering the flight zone, they won't try to run," said Comerford. "That's why people put blinders on horses and move cattle through chutes with solid sides. This blocks peripheral vision of the flight zone, and the animal is less likely to be distracted.

"An animal also will move forward more readily in a chute with solid sides. The solid sides make the animal feel confined, and it will instinctively move toward the daylight it sees ahead."

Livestock have poor depth perception and can be deceived by differences in light and dark. A shadow cast across a walkway appears to be a deep hole. Naturally, the animal refuses to walk across it. Artificial lighting in chutes and walkways can remedy this.

Farm animals also have difficulty moving from dark places to brightly lighted places, and vice versa. If a horse balks at the entrance to a barn, it may be because all it sees is darkness ahead. When leaving a livestock truck, cattle may be dazzled by bright sunlight.

"When moving animals from one light situation to another, allow them time to adjust to the change," said Comerford. "Rushing them will cause them to balk. Animals walking through a properly constructed loading chute will naturally walk forward if they aren't hurried."

Livestock move instinctively in a circular pattern, not straight ahead. "As long as they see other animals walking along a curve in front of them, they will follow," said Comerford. "If other animals are lined up directly ahead of them, any intrusion into their flight zone from the rear will cause them to try to turn back in the direction they came from. Loading chutes and walkways are more effective if built on a curve."

Comerford advises anyone owning livestock to have a restraining chute so animals can be handled at close range without risk of injury. The chute should be free of splinters, sharp edges, and exposed nails. The headlock at the front of the chute should be made of vertical bars to prevent choking or injury if the animal lies down or falls.

The chute should have solid sides to block the animal's peripheral vision and should be free of shadows and obstacles. "Even a rope hanging in front of an animal will make it back away," said Comerford.

Restraining chutes should be no more than 32 inches wide for grown cattle. Loading chutes should be no more than 30 inches wide. For calves, loading and restraining chutes should be no more than 28 inches wide. This prevents the animals from turning around.

"A functional cattle-handling facility can be made out of wood for as low as $300," said Comerford. "It's a lot less expensive than having an injured animal or person."

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds

BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.

MIX WITH DRY FEEDS: BREWEX is found in commercial pelleted rations for dairy, hogs and poultry as an energy source to replace corn. BREWEX replaces corn on a pound for pound dry basis and provides for improved pellet durability, reduced mineral segregation, dust control and improved palatability in dairy rations.

ON-FARM MIXING
A commercial Jersey dairy farm, having over ten years of experience in feeding BREWEX to partially replace corn finds that
- BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
- BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
- BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
- BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

Doebler's best new hybrids

JUST HOW GOOD? TRY ONE AND TELL US

by Bill Camerer

I'm Bill Camerer, Doebler's research director with two loads of 61X seed.

We're trying something different this year with our three new hybrids.

Instead of releasing them with the usual fanfare and media hype, we're going to ease them into the mainstream (see box) and then track them for a year.

We've already given our 1991 newcomers our best shot, with hundreds of research and farm trials from New York to Virginia.

Now we're inviting all corn growers to try them and tell us their results.

Next fall we'll have more impressive data on each hybrid. And we'll report back then. (See report on 1990 hybrids in far right column.)

Run a trial on new hybrids

Our research indicates these new hybrids are our future superstars. One outyielded every hybrid we sell. Look for ultra deep kernels designed for farmers who combine, or harvest silage.
DOEBLER 81XP, 118 days. Big sheller. Excellent grey leafspot tolerance
DOEBLER 73XP, 112 days. High yields. Quality stalks.
DOEBLER 64XP, 102 days. Top yields. Good choice if grey leafspot problem.

Tracking our 1990 hybrids

DOEBLER 75X-2, 116 days. Sister pedigree to PA's all-time corn champ. Healthier. Equal stalks and roots. Shelling big in full season country. 161.4 bu. average for 67 locations in 1989-90.

DOEBLER 69XP, 105 days. Excels as mid-season corn for late areas. Dark green, semi-upright leaves. Strong stalks. Shrugged off leaf diseases. 163.3 bu. average in 52 tests past two years.

DOEBLER 61X, 101 days. Watch out 65X. In Doebler trials, 61X was 5.1 bu. better and had 5% less down corn. And that's no fluke. 61X averaged 142.3 bu. at 67 locations over three years.

DOEBLER 650A-3 way, 100 days. Vigorous early grower, big sheller. It replaced 650-3 with 9.6 more bushels and 2% better standup. 1989-90 average at 34 locations--136.5 bu. Great price.

Sheep Producers Approve Referendum

DENVER, Colo. — All 48 contiguous states have passed the 1991 sheep industry referendum by both total producer votes and sheep numbers, said the American Sheep Industry Association following USDA's release of the results recently.

"We are extremely pleased with the results," said Chase Hibbard, Montana sheep producer and chair of ASI's Referendum Task Force Committee.

"I think the percentage of yes votes cast by producers in this referendum shows how supportive the industry is of ASI, and that's more important now than ever, with the current state of the industry. If we can continue working together as a whole, we stand a much better chance of correcting and overcoming our bigger hurdles," said Hibbard.

Hibbard noted that, of voting producers, 70.4 percent owning 74.6 percent of sheep in the U.S. voted "yes" in the 1991 referendum conducted recently. This is the tenth time the referendum has been voted on and approved by sheep producers.

In approving the referendum, sheep producers said they will continue deductions from their wool incentive payments to support national promotions for lamb and wool. The deductions, currently at 6 cents per pound of wool, could be increased to 7 cents for the 1991 marketing year if producer leaders and the secretary of agriculture decide the increase is warranted. During the life of the program, increases cannot exceed one cent per year or ever total more than 11 cents per pound of wool.

"The most basic impact of passing the referendum vote has assured continued funding for state and national promotional and producer education programs from fiscal year 1993 through 1997," said ASI President Jim Magagna. He added the actual rate of deduction has been entrusted to the ASI board who will reach a decision on the matter at its January 1992 convention in Orlando, Fla.

"The board will take this responsibility very seriously," said Magagna. "The legitimate budgetary needs of the state associations, adequacy of reserves, and the financial situation of our producers will all be carefully weighed."

During 1990, ASI spent approximately $6.4 million on promotional and educational programs and has budgeted $6.9 million for its 1991 program.

ASI's national wool promotion program is run in cooperation with other segments of the industry which provide additional or matching funds. The lamb and wool promotions include advertising, merchandising and education, with the majority of lamb promotions conducted in high lamb-consuming areas.

Penn State Wins Twice At KILE

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) —Teams from 10 states competed in the 32nd Intercollegiate and Junior Livestock Judging Contest held in conjunction with the Keystone International Livestock Exposition (KILE).

The contestants had to judge 12 classes of beef cattle, sheep, and hogs, and then present oral reasons to explain their selections.

While the Nittany Lions were preparing for a win in Philadelphia, the Pennsylvania State University judging team had already won the Intercollegiate Livestock Judging Contest. The annual event was open to judging teams from colleges offering a regular four-year course in agriculture.

Penn State scored a total of 4,447 points to defeat the teams from Illinois State, Ohio State, University of Kentucky, and Virginia Tech. Penn State earned a rotating trophy from Falkland Farms for their efforts, plus a trophy from the Pa. Meat Packers Association, and a cash award from the Pennsylvania Livestock Association.

Donnie Sheiss led the Penn State team with 933 points, the highest individual score overall. Following closely was Rae Jean Howser from Ohio State with 928 points, Gary Blevins from the University of Kentucky with 916, Kent Bauman from Ohio State with 915, and Thomas Oldfield from the University of Kentucky with 914 points.

The Ohio 4-H Team outscored other scholastic judges from around the country to capture first place in the Junior Livestock Judging Contest. They received a trophy from the Pennsylvania Meat Packers Association for their high score of 2,120 and their coach got a $50 cash award from the Pennsylvania Livestock Association. The Ohio team also received an award from the Pennfield Corporation for placing first in reasons with 470 points.

Second place in the overall team judging went to the Maryland 4-H team with 2,078 points, followed closely by the Pennsylvania 4-H team with 2,071 points. Kentucky and Indiana rounded out the top five.

Just five points separated the top four 4-H or FFA teams for their score on reasons. After first place Ohio, the Indiana 4-H had 469 points, Kentucky 4-H had 467, and Maryland 4-H had 466 points.

Larissa Scherr of the Ohio 4-H team was the overall high scoring individual in the junior contest with 726 points and earned the Max Smith Award. She also earned a desk set for placing first during a tie-breaker in oral reasons. Team mate Becky Emnett placed second overall in points and received the Tony Dobrosky Award for her efforts. Second place in reasons went to Tom Mench on the Indiana 4-H team.

Sheep Show Woven Into KILE

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The biggest Merino sheep show in the country highlighted the sheep events at the 35th annual Keystone International Livestock Exhibition (KILE), held at the State Farm Show Complex.

A variety of other breeds were represented at KILE, including Suffolk, Columbia, Corriedale, Dorset, Rambouillet, Oxford, Southdown, Hampshire, Shropshire, and Romney. In addition to the Merino show, a Futurity event (in which designated animals are followed through a two-year period and judged on their ability to maintain their identity and express the standards of the breed) was held for Romneys.

Hundreds of entrants were registered in an industry that has seen a resurgance of the drive toward quality wool. Spinners in the craft industry are getting better and wool garments are sought after for their natural feel, so there is an increased demand for fine, delicate wool fabric.

Two other events are related to the sheep shows and sales. First is the wool judging event, designed to encourage the production of bettwe wool, promote proper handling, grading and preparation for market, and create an awareness of the many qualities of wool and its uses. The second event, the Keystone Lead Line, presents a class of yearling ewes coupled with young people in wool outfits, which gives spectators the opportunity to see the best of the sheep industry. The event also gives youth the opportunity to show leadership and poise, and helps them to become a part of the exposition.

Rodney Crome, handler for Schlichter Hampshires of Jeffersonville, Ohio, shows the champion Hampshire ewe at KILE.

Grand champion Shropshire ewe was shown by Ron Miller, Wey Shropshires.

When Buying A NEW COMBINE

DON'T OVERLOOK THE CASE IH AXIAL FLOW ADVANTAGE

the single rotor

With the SINGLE AXIAL FLOW ROTOR you get:

1) INCREASED PRODUCTION by the ability to start combining earlier in the day, and to keep combining later into the night.
2) BETTER GRAIN QUALITY because the ROTOR'S threshing action is much gentler than a conventional combine's cylinder.
3) LESS MAINTENANCE because there is NO strawwalker system to repair.

DON'T OVERLOOK THE HOOBER SERVICE ADVANTAGE

HOOBER'S experienced service people

With HOOBER's experienced SERVICE PEOPLE you get:

1) Fulltime Combine mechanics who work on combines year round, not just when you have a problem.
2) PEOPLE WHO CARE about your problems and want to fix them fast. so that you can get back to the field.
3) RECONDITIONED COMPONENTS which are not for sale, but are strictly reserved for use by the SERVICE DEPARTMENT to insert in customers machines who have major component failures.

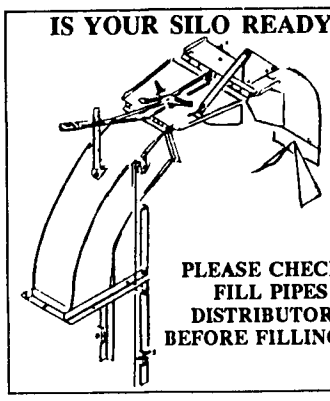
Strengthen And Reseal Your Silo With Shotcrete
STRONGER AND WILL OUT LAST PLASTER

IS YOUR SILO READY TO BE FILLED WITH CORN SILAGE?



PLEASE CHECK YOUR FILL PIPES AND DISTRIBUTORS NOW BEFORE FILLING SEASON

S&S Silo Service prepares the silo surface by using a 3,000 lb pressure washer, thus making the silo moist, making a much better surface to bond shotcrete. After shotcreting, S&S always takes away any roughness by applying a steel trowel finish.

The excellent bonding of shotcrete to the silo will keep out moisture and prevent mold from growing on the side of the silo

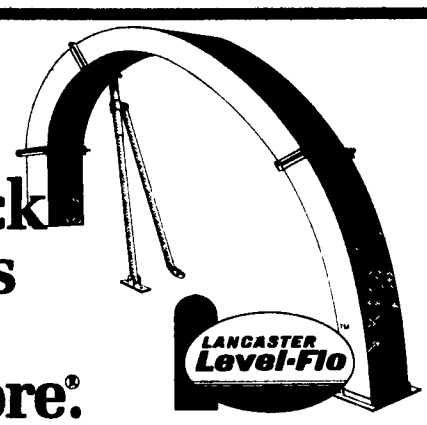
Our 12 inch gooseneck improves your Harvestore®.



Lancaster Level-Flo's replacement gooseneck lets you fill your silo faster and easier It has a 33% larger capacity than original Harvestore® goosenecks and its high-profile shape improves flow You can actually blow in 3 tons of haylage a minute without plugging the Level-Flo 12" gooseneck Yet it attaches easily to standard 9" fill-pipe

Our gooseneck's completely enclosed design keeps silage off the roof of your silo Not only does this eliminate waste, it extends the life of the silo roof

With an outer shell of galvanized steel, the Level-Flo 12" gooseneck stays bright and shiny for years And it contains an inner liner of extremely wear-resistant stainless steel

- Designed with final section straight and vertical to put silage in the center of your silo
- And it's almost 50% less expensive than a Harvestore® replacement gooseneck

Harvestore® is a registered trademark of A O Smith Inc

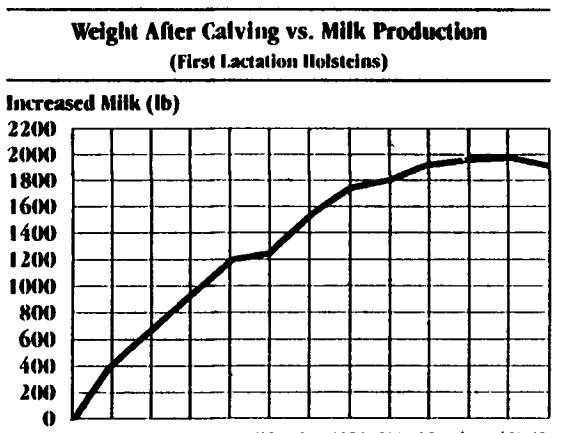
PROOF THAT OPTIMALLY GROWN HEIFERS ARE HEAVIER MILK PRODUCERS.

The most obvious reason for heifers to freshen on Purina's recommended 24 month/1,400 pound schedule is increased milk production in the first lactation. While both factors are important, records at the Northeast DHI Processing Center prove that weight has more influence than age. Note in the graph how production increases as body weight increases. At the 1,250 pound level, most of the improvement in milk potential has been realized. Heifers at the heaviest body weight actually show a decline in milking ability, presumably because of improper mammary development resulting from excessive growth rates.

That's all the more reason to feed those replacement calves the dependable Purina Startena Growena.



Results from data on 618,366 first calf heifers
